U. S. RABBI, WIFE, SLAIN IN ATTACK BY ARABS

Today

Welcome, Dr. Eckener,
Says Bache to Block,
Eheu.
News From Palestine.
Safer in the Air.

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1929, King Features Synd., Inc.

DR. ECKENER, past 60 years, having to his credit and that of the German nation an accomplishment important to the human race, is honored as he should be in Washington, New York and throughout the world.

The nations also remember with gratitude Count Zeppelin, who devoted life and fortune to developing the dirigible which will always bear his name. Mr. Hoffman, chairman of the Steuben Society of America, reminds you that Zeppelin as a young man fought and made his first balloon ascension in our Civil War.

It is for Americans, especially the President and others responsible for the nation's safety, to learn from Dr. Eckener that the oceans have been made narrow.

Three days across the Pacific will soon be reduced to one day. A day and a half across the Atlantic to less than half a day.

Dr. Eckener has given us a "close up" of Asia and Europe.

We look, now, into faces all friendly. It may not be so always.

No man can tell what will come in the kaleidoscope of war.

In the big war a British anti-aircraft bullet, badly aimed at a German airship, went through a window in the House of Commons, damaging a painting of Nelson in his last battle.

The broken window and damaged painting are allowed to remain, reminding Britain that the Allies of today may be the enemies of tomorrow.

In the battle that killed Nelson, England was fighting France, and Germany was England's ally.

Eheu fugaces (whatever that may mean), said Jules Bache to Paul Block at the Dr. Eckener luncheon in New York yesterday. Block had received a memorandum saying that stocks were up $2 to $7 a share in spite of a rise in brokers' loans increase of $132,000,000.

Signing the Young agreement seems to have started a Wall Street boom. It takes little to do that. And Jules Bache, who lives in Wall Street, felt sorry for the bears.

"What goes up must come down," perhaps. But as Paul Block remarked "Hope deferred makes the heart sick, and the pocketbook sicker."

Conditions in Palestine, reported better yesterday morning, are gloomy today.

The seizure by British troops of Arab chiefs at the Gates of Jerusalem apparently did not discourage the Arabs. The Jewish telegraphic agency reports nine killed at Safed, and the town in flames.

That Moslem hatred is directed at other religions indiscriminately is shown in the attack on a Catholic settlement at Latrun, in which one priest was killed and many others wounded.

Jewish population in Palestine is estimated at 150,000. Correct figures are not available. A census in 1922 showed 86,794 Jews, a number since greatly increased.

The proportion of American Jews is small, only 2,000 according to our State department.

Above the Mosque of Omar, sacred to Mohammedans, close by the Wailing Wall, where Jews to this day mourn the destruction of the Temple, British planes circle throughout the daylight hours.

Arabs, indifferent to death for themselves, know what one small bomb would do to their sacred mosque.

The wise British, however, only frighten. They would not willingly offend any religion under the British flag. They learned a lesson in the Sepoy rebellion.

As Dr. Eckener returns safely from his air trip around the world in 21 days you read of a coast liner sunk in collision—74 missing.

"Air roads," 10 miles high, 25,000 miles round, with no icebergs, and no storms six miles up, will soon be far safer than any land or water travel.

Standard Oil of New York has cut the price of gasoline three cents. That means real war, perhaps intended to discourage the British "Shell" company, which has come among us to compete with American oil.

A price war will not break the hearts of automobile owners.

But it will not help the oil situation.

3 AMERICANS ARE VICTIMS OF MOSLEM BUTCHERY

Ancient Town of Safed Raided by Band; British Warship Shells Arabs

Jerusalem, Aug. 31—Rabbi Samuel Cohen and his wife, said to be Americans, were among 22 Jews killed in an attack by Arab Moslems on ancient Safed, northern Galilean city.

Today the ransacked town was in flames. Many of the victims were stabbed to death.

Levi Heller, 17, an American boy, nephew of a New York cotton merchant, died late today of wounds received in the raid.

During the night Arabs attacked the Jewish colony at Gederah and later burned the granery in the colony of Kfarbaruch. Children of the colony Bethalphia were moved to Tel-Aviv for safety.

The British cruiser Durham today hurled shells at a Moslem mob in Rafta. Thirty Arabs are believed to have been killed and 40 wounded in the bombardment.

Jewish leaders this morning asked the Palestine authorities to disarm Arab members of the Palestine police, whom they charged with using their arms against Jewish refugees they were protecting.

The request was made after receipt of a report from Safed that six Jewish refugees, including a 12-year-old boy, were wounded in the Safed police courtyard when Arab police fired on them.

The boy died of his wounds. The police alleged suspicious noises were heard in the courtyard.

The situation of 3,000 Jewish refugees in the Safed police courtyard was described as appalling. Roofless, breadless and without water, and exposed to bullying by the Arab police, they faced starvation and epidemics.

The greatest fear today was held of a general movement of tribes in northern Syria. Airplanes patrolled the southern colonies.

In a new clash between Jews and Arabs within the walls of this city three Jews were killed. A number of other Jews are said to have been killed and wounded while resisting troops attempting to disarm them.

A strong force of British troops was moved north from Jerusalem today to quell fierce fighting in the Beisan neighborhood, where Arabs have been massing on a broad plain.

Along the Syrian border considerable forces of the Mussulmans are said to be entering Palestine, despite troops already on guard. More troops are rushing to the scene to check the threatened invasion.

The Arab force, according to word received in official quarters, is moving south, a party of Jewish high school students, including 14 Americans, is near the Syrian frontier on an outing and an appeal has been made to the American consul for protection for them, in view of the Arab advance.

Meanwhile the situation in isolated Jewish colonies in the Jordan valley has greatly alarmed authorities. In Tiberias it was regarded as particularly dangerous, and energetic measures have been taken for its defense.

The Arabs are said to have boasted that the same fate was in store for Tiberias as for Safed. There were only four British soldiers there.

The Jordan Valley Arabs were greatly excited over reports that several of their fellow tribesmen had been killed by Jews in the neighboring colony of Kinereth.

12 Miners Burned in Blast, 300 Escape

Renton, Pa., Aug. 31 (AP)—Three hundred miners escaped and 12 others were burned in an explosion in the Renton mine of the Union Collieries today.

The burned miners were taken to a hospital at New Kensington, where several were said to be in a serious condition.

Officials were unable to learn immediately what caused the blast, which shook the countryside.

A few minutes after the blast mine officials asked that the U. S. Bureau of Mines at Pittsburgh rush rescue workers to the scene. The rescuers were ready to leave when word was received that all the men in the mine had been rescued or escaped safety.

The 300 men in the workings were about 50 feet below the surface. The explosion caused a great rush of air through tunnels.

This warned the miners and they rushed for the shaft, carrying the injured men. They were quickly hoisted to the surface.

Fair, Warmer Labor Day Promised Hub

While there is a faint possibility of showers in Greater Boston on Monday, officials at the weather bureau were confident today that Labor Day week-end will be pleasant with a slight rise in temperature.

There will be occasional showers throughout northern New England tomorrow. Monday will, in all probability, be fair and slightly warmer in the interior. In southern New England it will be cloudy and warmer tomorrow and probably Monday.

New York and Boston Stock Exchanges and other markets, except the New York Cotton Exchange, were closed today in extension of the Labor Day holiday.

5 Days to Go; Flees Jail, Gets 30 More

Springfield, Aug. 31—Refusing to wait five more days to complete a 90-day sentence in the prison camp at Torrington, Ct., has cost Frank O'Mara of Worcester 30 more days of liberty.

After escaping O'Mara was arrested here while operating an alleged stolen automobile while under under the influence of liquor.

In court today he was given a month's sentence for drunken driving and will be returned to Torrington when he finishes the term in Hampden county jail.

Boston Estate Gets $59,000 Tax Rebate

Washington, Aug. 31 (AP)—An abatement of $59,701 to the estate of Sanford F. Petts, Boston, for over assessment of estate tax was announced today by the Internal Revenue Bureau. The over assessment was teh result of an allowance of a credit for state estate, inheritance, legacy, and successions taxes paid subsequent to the filing of the Federal tax returns.

CHILDREN PLAY LOTTERY; NAB NAHANT MAN

Ring Made Fortune Off High School Pupils on Clearing House Numbers

With the arrest today of Charles T. McTague, of Nahant, in Portland, Me., police of that city believe they have the leader of a lottery that has been making a fortune from high school boys and girls by the sale of clearing house and treasury balance tickets.

McTague had 3000 tickets in his possession which were to be distributed next week, it was stated.

Arrests of more than a score of his alleged agents are expected to follow soon.

Police action was prompted by the claim of the father of a high school boy who said he had to pay for $12 worth of tickets which his son bought.

Investigation disclosed that hundreds of children were buying tickets. Some had won prizes, it was said.

McTague refused to talk, but the police say the tickets, a list of his agents in Portland, their telephone numbers and their financial statements were found in his bag.

Boston police were then asked to investigate McTague.

SAVE GIRL FROM GAS DEATH

Overcome by illuminating gas flowing from a broken main, Agnes Sullivan, 17, of Riverside ave., Medford, was rescued today when workmen forced their way into the home of Mrs. William Hyland, in the Fellsway, Medford.

Miss Sullivan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Sullivan, had spent the night with Mrs. Hyland, who arose early and went to work, leaving the girl asleep.

A steam shovel excavating in the street for water pipes, broke a gas main and the fumes poured out into the neighborhood, affecting some of the workmen.

Others heard a girl's screams coming from the Hyland house, and forcing their way in, found Miss Sullivan unconscious from gas which had leaked in.

Dr. Maguire was called, and after the girl had been revived by the prone system, she was taken to Lawrence Memorial Hospital where it was said her condition was not serious.

Young Rockefeller's Condition Favorable

Bar Harbor, Me. Aug 31 (AP)—Lawrence Rockefeller, son of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., operated on for appendicitis, was reported today to have passed a "comfortable night" at Bar Harbor hospital. His condition was said to be "satisfactory."

2 U. S. WOMEN WILL LEAVE ON ZEPP TONIGHT

Included in Passenger List for Voyage of Airliner to Friedrichshafen

Lakehurst, N. J., Aug. 31—When the Graf Zeppelin takes off tonight about midnight for Germany she will have two women passengers aboard for the first time.

Mrs. H. Lustig, who gave a New York address, was booked for the trip today by the Hamburg-American line. The other woman to go is Mrs. Charles E. Parker of Cleveland, O., widow of a noted surgeon who was a member of the faculty of Western Reserve University and who died 10 years ago.

Neither woman has ever before made an aerial voyage.

Two other new passengers were added to the list today. They are Paul L. Beck of Baltimore, representative of the American Wholesale Corp. of Baltimore, who has been traveling to Germany for 30 years to buy merchandise for his company, and Frederick S. Hogg of Mount Vernon, N. Y., retired importer of German canaries, who has just returned from a 14 months trip around the world and plans to buy an airplane if his Zeppelin trip pleases him.

One round-the-world passenger, Dr. S. D. Seilkopf of the Hamburg weather bureau, announced today he would not make the second trip to Friedrichshafen.

LADY HAY NOT GOING

Another who made the world flight and others previously, Lady Grace Drummond Hay, will not be a passenger tonight. She is to remain in America for some time.

Besides Block and Hogg 16 other men are booked to leave on the airliner tonight. They include Joaquim Rickard, Boston and Madrid, and Hein von Eschwege-Lichbert, Berlin newspaperman; Edward P. Frost, brother of Jack Frost who lost his life in the Dole flight from San Francisco to Hawaii; Dr. William M. Scholl, Chicago manufacturer of orthopedic foot appliances; John W. Schnitzler of Froid Mont., a member of the Republican National Committee, and R. A. L. Bogan of Syracuse, N. Y., general manager of a bus company.

If all goes well the Graf should reach Friedrichshafen Tuesday evening or early Wednesday. Then she will have traveled about 28,000 miles since she crossed to Lakehurst a month ago to begin her record smashing tour round

Edison Confined to Bed With Cold

West Orange, N. J., Aug. 31 (AP)—Thomas A. Edison was recovering today from a cold which had kept him confined to his bed for ten days. The inventor is 82 years old. Charles Edison, his son, said he would remain in bed for a day or two.

End Comes at 75

Dr. Morton Prince, one of the most noted physicians in the world, died today at Peter Bent Brigham Hospital after a brief illness. He was 75 years old.

DOCTOR PRINCE DEAD AT 72

Dr. Morton Prince of Beacon st., Boston, one of the best known neurologists in the country, died of heart trouble today at Peter Bent Brigham Hospital.

He had been in the hospital, critically ill, since last Monday.

Dr. Prince, who was 75, leaves a widow, two children, Mrs. Claire Prince Wolcott and Morton Peabody Prince, and a granddaughter, Mrs. Henry Hill Collins of Philadelphia.

INSTRUCTOR AT TUFTS.

Dr. Prine, was graduated from Harvard University in 1875 and from Harvard medical school four years later. While at the university he was one of the pioneers in football, being president of the football club. He displayed a keen interest in the game after leaving college.

After being graduated from Harvard medical school he taught there, but in 1902 went to Tufts medical school, remaining there until 1912.

Bridegroom Killed in Flying for Record

Cleveland, Aug. 31—Flying in solitary resistance to the demands of a wearied body for rest, Pilot Thomas Reid fell asleep at the controls of his plane after setting a record for solo endurance flights early today, and crashed.

He was killed earning hourly bonuses for a honeymoon with his bride of a few days.

Reid took off shortly after 11 a. m. Thursday and for 37 hours droned a monotonous course over the airport, fighting drowsiness caused by his humming motor and the physical strain of flying.

A few minutes after 1 a. m. today he made a new record, of 37 hours, 56 minutes and 36 seconds, constant flying, without refueling.

THREE BOATS BATTLE FOR THE LEAD

Fourth Far Behind; Little Prospect of Finishing Within Time Limit

Gloucester, Aug. 31—Hauling out from the ruck on the wings of a light breeze, the schooner Progress, considered out of the race, pulled into the lead today in the fourth hour of the seven-hour time limit race. The Progress is the lightest of the racers and skimmed along while the heavier craft swung booms wide to get every inch of the lazy blow.

Gloucester, Aug. 31—Caught in a calm shortly after the start of the fishermen's race off here today, three vessels swapped leads as each gathered a puff only to fall back in a drift with little prospect of any of them finishing within the seven-hour time limit.

The Elsie, favorite of many and skippered by Norman Ross, took the first lead only to relinquish it 30 minutes after passing the first buoy.

Here the Arthur D. Storey with the veteran Cap'n Ben Pine yelling orders, surged ahead as the slight breeze forsook him.

He was passed shortly after by the Thomas S. Gorton, but none of the vessels were moving materially.

Another schooner, the Progress, started but she couldn't catch a breeze and dropped behind. The race is the first in a series to decide the much-mooted supremacy of the North Atlantic.

During the first hour of the race, which was witnessed by thousands of persons in all sorts of craft and from the shore, the racing vessels had progressed only two miles on the first leg of the 37½ nautical mile course, which caused many to conclude that today's event would be declared "no race."

FEAR "NO RACE"

According to agreement, if the race is not finished in 7 hours it will be declared "no race" and the early indications were that unless the wind freshened materially that would be the result.

Following close behind was the Elsie, skippered by Capt. Norman Ross.

The Thomas Gorton, commanded by Capt. Wallace Parsons, was in third position, and the Progress, captained by Manuel Domingos, was last.

As the four schooners slowly drifted across the starting line there was a bedlam of cheering from thousands of spectators aboard coast guard and navy vessels, private yachts, excursion boats and persons lining the shores from this city to Magnolia.

The Story held her early lead only a few minutes when she was passed by the Elsie. At the end of the first half hour the wind was estimated at 10 miles an hour. The first leg of the race was east by north along the shore in view of spectators on land who followed the vessels with binoculars.

SAILS ARE FLAPPING

By this time the Gorton was second, the Story third and Progress last. Booms were swung wide to catch what little wind there was. A speed of only two miles an hour was being made at the end of the first hour.

At this rate it would be impossible to complete the race in the time limit. Shiny new canvas was flapping helplessly most of the time. The lightness of the wind caused much disappointment among the throng of spectators.

They were said to be gathering at Semakh from all surrounding villages.

During the past 48 hours 35 Jews have been wounded in Jerusalem despite the presence of British soldiers who patrolled the city with fixed bayonets.

Telpioth, Jewish residential suburb of Jerusalem, which previously had been looted, has again been attacked.

Arabs at Qulonia, paying no attention to threads of reprisals by the British deputy commissioner there, burned the mill and other buildings during the night.

Five days ago Jewish homesteads there were burned and two girls were tied up together and burned alive.

British Military authorities today pointed out that only a considerable guard could prevent the dangerous Druse tribesmen, who have caused the French Syrian authorities so much trouble, from crossing the long frontier.

France governs Syria under a mandate similar to that by which the British control Palestine.

The British authorities have exerted every means to stop invasion from both Syria and Trans-Jordania.

Mithgal Lel Faiz, first sheik of the powerful and dangerous Beni Sakhi tribe in Trans-Journia, who slipped through the frontier guards with three companions and penetrated to Jerusalem, has been captured. He was discovered here disguised in the ordinary attire of the low class Aarab.

Jews Slaughtered in Raid on Ancient Safed

Jerusalem, Aug. 31—The Arab-Jewish conflagration is definitely spreading to Syria. The position of Damascus is hourly becoming more grave. All passport visas have been suspended by the French. The Druses, a fighting tribe who wrecked Damascus in the anti-French rebellion two years ago, are mobilizing.

At this moment the Jewish quarter of the picturesque old town of Safed, which lies at the foot of the mountains of Jermak, just north of the Sea of Galilee, is a heap of ruins.

A further Jewish massacre occurred there, when a mob of infuriated Arabs poured into the Jewish settlement, where they murdered, looted and burned.

At least seven people were killed and 30 more injured and wounded, while 3000 Jews, comprising the entire Jewish community, are now homeless refugees under police protection in government buildings.

No British troops were present and the police force was inadequate when the fighting began.

For more than two hours, when the first detachment of British troops arrived from Tiberias, the terrified population was entirely at the mercy of the Aarb marauders.

Having ransacked half the dwellings of the Jewish section of the town, the Arabs fired a shell into the oil stores. The flames' reflection could be seen in the sky for miles around. Scores of houses were set afire.

Terrible difficulties were experienced by the local Hadassah hospital, which is the only hospital in Safed. Many Jews were victims of grave knife wounds and could be saved only by immediate surgical operations, but the hospital is designed only for tuberculosis patients and there was no surgeon present. It was not until late this morning when a surgeon was able to secure escort and proceed to the stricken town.

The Arabs fled with the arrival of the troops, but not before the town had been thoroughly ransacked and the Jewish community savagely assaulted. At Safed, the outrages, according to reports telephoned to local Jewish hospitals, were similar to those committed at Hebron. A young Jewish lawyet was almost cut to pieces with a carving knife; women were assaulted and children were not spared. The Jews were unable to bury their dead or recover their wounded owing to the continuous fire.

then he set out to fly as long as fuel, motor and man-power would keep him aloft. A bonus of $100 an hour for his bride in Downey, Cal., urged him on.

CRASHED UPON TREE.

For two hours more the cruising lights of his plane circled the airport. Timers stood below, clocking his minutes in the darkness. Then the sound of his motor faded away.

"He's going for a ride," the watchers said.

Two more hours passed and the lights had not been seen. Pilots Bill Butters and Dale Dryer climbed into their planes. It was daybreak and the sky was clear. They went to hunt for him. Two miles away they saw the wreckage of the plane, wrapped around the trunk of a tree. Twenty-five feet away lay Reid's body. One of his fuel tanks was full.

"He was asleep," Dryer said. "He came down in a dive, dead to the world, right after leaving the airport, probably about 3 a. m."

Reid will not be credited with breaking the world's solo flight record, as rules of the American Aeronautical Association require that a flier land at the same field from which he took off. The record of Lieut. Herbert J Faney, made at Burbank, Cal., May 29, therefore will stand.

FLIER FOR 15 YEARS.

Reid had been a flier 15 years, part of that time in the service of the U. S. Navy. He had never had an accident prior to his death.

He was forced down by a defective spark plug in an Emsco plane at Long Beach, Cal., recently when he had reached 27 hours 29 minutes in an attempt to eclipse the record.

Reid's death is the fifth during the races. In addition to Miss Crosson, Pilot E J Devereaux, Mrs. Devereaux and his mechanic were killed in a crash at Boston during the Philadelphia to Cleveland derby.

Tackie, Hero Dog of War, Is Near Death

Redlands, Cal., Aug. 31 (AP)—Old age is about to remove from Tackie's life the charm which carried the dog through four years of messenger service during the World War in the French and Belgian armies without a scratch. He is so feeble at the home of Edward Newbegin, his owner, that death is only a matter of days.

Tackie, Gruenwaldt, Belgian shepherd, was enrolled in the French army in 1914, and carried the first message between regiments ever sent by dog under fire. He carried communications in a capsule in his mouth. The dog continued in the service until the armistice.

At the close of the war the French trainer and breeder who had prepared Tackie and others for their work was ordered to Russia. He left the dog with a sister, and Newbegin obtained him from her.

Jews Pick Leaders in Drive for Funds

A. C. Ratshesky, president of the United States Trust Co. and one of the most prominent Jews in Boston today assumed the chairmanship of the New England Palestine Emergency Campaign. Judge David A. Lourie of the superior bench, another ardent Zionist, accepted the vice-chairmanship.

With the two heads of the committee of 100 selected, the campaign today got under way. A total of $4611.66 in voluntary contributions was announced today at the Zionist headquarters in [illegible]ool st.

While the drive for immediate relief for the Jews in Palestine progressed, the Jewish war veterans of Dorchester were arranging their mammoth open air protest meeting to be staged tonight at Woodrow and Blue Hill aves., Dorchester.

Charles Elashowich will preside and the following men will speak: Hyman Manovitch, Councilor Israel Ruby, Maxwell Cohen, Israel Kazis and Hyman Esrog. Sunday a parade and meeting will be staged.

In Revere another meeting of indignation is to be held tomorrow night at 7 p. m. at the Congregation Tifereth Israel. Rabbi Ber Boruchoff, Rabbi [illegible] A. Landers, Councilor Israel Ruby, Rep. Thomas F. Carroll, Rep. Gus Airola, Councilor James F. Robertson, acting mayor of Revere, Senator Conde Brodbine and Sergt.-Major Jack Williams are scheduled to speak. Dr. Morris Silverman is to preside.

At the New B. F. Keith's Theater a benefit performance will be given Monday of the premier Boston showing of RKO's first big singing, dancing and talking picture, Street Girl, with Betty Compson.

Street Girl is hailed as one of the most spectacular and entertaining the newest talking pictures and will be shown for the first time here at the New B. F. Keith's.

Throughout the entire city Jews were coming to the defense of their people in Palestine. While the Hadassah women were arranging a special meeting at the Copley Plaza Hotel next Wednesday afternoon the rabbis of the city were completing their arrangements for services of appeal and protest in seven synagogues.

The synagogues' meetings, at which urgent appeals for funds will be made, will be held in Temple Mishkan Tefila, Adath Jeshurum Congregation of the Blue Hill ave. synagogue, Crawford st. synagogue, Woodrow ave. synagogue, Beth El Temple, Dorchester; North Russell st. synagogue, West End, and the Shaari Tefila.

Rabbi Elisha Silver of Chelsea will hold services Tuesday night at the Chelsea temple.

At Kenberma the Jewish women named Mrs. Albert Salter of Chelsea, president of the New England Hadassah Conference, as general New England chairman of the women's branch of the emergency committee. The meeting, composed of a handful of Hadassah members summering at Kenberma, was held at the Manomet ave. residence of Mrs. George Wyner.

Zionist officials today announced that all contributions for the New England Emergency Campaign Fund should be sent to A. C. Ratshesky, chairman, 24 School st., Room 308, Boston.

FALMOUTH AIR SHOW OPENS

Falmouth, Aug. 31—New England's first outdoor aircraft show opened here today with the arrival from Barnstable of a Stearman plane powered with a whirlwind motor and piloted by Olcott Payson of Skyways, Inc.

The next arrival was a Travel Air monoplane flown by N. S. Smith of the Ludington Aircraft Co., Philadelphia, and he was followed soon by two Navy Curtiss fledgling planes from the Boston airport piloted by Ensign Marshall and Lieut. Colwell.

Fifteen other planes were due late today from airports through New England, New York and Pennsylvania.

The show will close Monday night. It is expected more than 15,000 persons will attend.

Al St. Johns Out of Jail for a While

Los Angeles, Aug. 31 (AP)—Al St. Johns, film comedian, was temporarily at liberty today under a writ of habeas corpus relieving him from serving an indefinite jail sentence for failing to pay his former wife $1600 back alimony.

The writ was obtained upon the contention that Superior Judge Charles Burnell had exceeded his authority in sentencing St. Johns to the county rock pile. St. Johns said he was "broke" and would have to stay in jail the rest of his life in order to satisfy the sentence.

many of whom had come long distances in the hope of seeing a real race.

ELSIE GAINS MORE

As the schooners neared the first mark the Elsie was holding her lead. The Story was two lengths astern, being held to the windward by the veteran skipper Capt. Pine. The Gorton stood off to catch the wind while Progress had dropped far astern to the leeward.

The coast guard destroyers Sturtevant and Bushnell followed the schooners at close range. The former contained the judges and the latter officials and guests.

The sportsmanship of the crews of all the contesting vessels was shown when they helped replace a mainsail on the Gorton at the last moment. The skipper of this vessel was not satisfied with the old one. Every sailmaker in port was called in to aid.

Veteran fishing skippers served as official observers. They were Capt. Stephen Black on the Story, Capt. Jim Daniel on Elsie, Capt. Lawrence McKenzie on Gorton, and Capt. John McKinnon on Progress.

'Gas Buns' Cost $5 Fines in Lynn

The unusual explanation of Paul Soroka of his wobbly condition when he appeared in the office of the Lynn probation officer to pay his weekly stipend of $10 for support of his wife was not accepted by Judge Reeve, who fined him $5 for drunkenness.

Soroka explained that illuminating gas was the the cause of the alleged "bun." He said a gas jet was open in his room when he awakened and that the effects of the gas had not worn off when he appeared to pay his wife's support money.

END PARLEY ON REPARATIONS IN PEACE

Young to Name U. S. Representation on International Bank Committee

The Hague, Aug. 31 (AP)—The reparations conference, which finally reached an agreement looking toward liquidation of the post-war problems, adjourned this afternoon subject to call of the president.

The reports of the political and financial committees, with the documents registering agreements entered into, were signed at a full conference this morning after verification.

It was decided the conference should not adjourn without date, because it was necessary for the work of the sub-committee to be approved formally in order that the Young Plan might go into operation legally.

The sub-committee appointed are on organization of the bank of international settlements; on final liquidation of the claims arising from the sequestration of enemy property; on modification of legislation in the Reich for the Dawes plan to make it fit the new Young plan, and on changes to be made in the railroad debentures to permit the Reich to raise money by issuing railroad bonds.

The bank committee will be composed of the heads of the banks of issue of the six inviting powers with a delegate from the United States, to be chosen probably by Owen D. Young.

DEATH TAKES DR. PRINCE

ic psychology at Harvard College. He had the distinction of being the oldest man to be appointed a professor at the institution.

Dr. Prince was an author of much renown, having written many treatises on psychology. One of these, "Becky," the story of a girl with a triple personality, was widely discussed.

Ten years ago Dr. Prince was honored by France when on Sept. 5, 1919, the cross of the Legion of Honor was officially presented to him in the Hall of Flags at the State House, Boston, in recognition of his distinguished services in promoting Franco-American cooperation during the World War. The presentation was made by Dr Marcel Knecht in the presence of many notables, including Calvin Coolidge, who was then Governor.

The cross was bestowed upon Dr. Prince following his return from Paris where, for 15 months, he was manager of the Massachusetts Soldiers' and Sailors' Information Bureau.

During 1915 and 1916 he was in France doing propaganda work and was known there as the "Friend of France." He prepared the famous "Message of the 500 Americans" during that period, which conveyed the information to the Allied nations that a vast majority of the people of the United States sympathized with the Allied cause, even though this country was then neutral. This message created a profound impression.

Dr. Prince's nephew, Norman Prince, was one of the first American aviators to fall in action in the war.

In addition to being interested in football Dr. Prince was a lover of yachting. Three years ago he imported a Class R yacht from Germany and entered it in the races at Marblehead.

At the Prince residence in Beacon st., it was announced funeral services will be conducted in Emmanuel Church, Newbury st., Back Bay, at noon, Tuesday and burial will be in the family lot in Mt. Auburn Cemetery. Internment will be private, and friends are requested not to send floral tributes.

Jail Maine Woman for Selling Rum

Portland, Me., Aug. 31 (AP)—Mrs. Mary P. Driscoll, of Quincy st., was given the maximum sentence of six months in jail and fined $500 in Municipal court today on a charge of possessing liquor.

Deputy Sheriff Bisbee told Judge Pinansky she had "been more active than ever" since her arraignment on a similar charge two months ago. She appealed and was held in $1500.

Make Special Niche for Bust of Lodge

A bust of the late Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, the acceptance of which was autrodized at the last session of the Legislature, is to be placed in Doric hall at the entrance of the Hall of Flags. A special niche is being prepared to hold the memorial.

Better Care of Vets Urged by Landis

'Hero' of 100 Fights Takes Knockout In Hub Court

Andrew J. Hodman's boast that he had fought a hundred fights and had been knocked out only three times in 18 years resulted in his being committed to the physcopathic hospital for observation, by Judge Murray, in Municipal court today.

Hodman appeared on charges of larceny of $4 from a Back Bay apartment house janitor whom he told could buy a suit and a hat for $20, but would have to put a cash deposit of $4 down.

The janitor paid the money, but never saw the clothing and Hodman was subsequently arrested.

HUNT FATHER OF 11 AND PAYROLL

Harry Preston, 46, father of 11 children, of Tremont st., Cambridge, was being sought by Cambridge and Boston police today following his disappearance from the Inman Sq. Trust Co., Cambridge, with a payroll of $570. He withdrew the money for J. Frank Facey, his employer.

Preston for many years had been going to the bank every Saturday to get the weekly payroll for the Facey Printing Co. He left his office as usual at 11 a. m. today and, when he did not return after a reasonable time, Facey became uneasy and notified police.

Inspectors Carroll, O'Neil and Buchannan learned that Preston had drawn the money, and they found a taxicab driver who said he had taken Preston to Kendal sq., from where Preston dispatched him with an envelope to be delivered to his wife.

When Mrs. Preston was questioned she told police she had received the envelope from her husband and that it contained $160.

The taxidriver said that after taking the envelope he saw Preston board a bus for Boston.

FINE IMPOSTER AND CHINESE IN LICENSE FRAUD

Costs Them $50 Each to Attempt by Trick to Get Auto Permit

Charged with impersonating a Chinese in connection with an examination to obtain an automobile license, Johnny B. Gabriel, colored, of Westminster st., Roxbury, was fined $50 in South Boston court today after pleading guilty.

Barry Dong, the Chinese, of Blue Hill ave., Roxbury, was fined $50 on a charge of inducing the negro to impersonate him. He, too, pleaded guilty.

Gabriel and Dong went to the automobile registry at Commonwealth Pier. Gabriel was to take an examination. Before doing so he gave Dong his own license. Dong claimed to have driven Gabriel to the registry.

"Let me see your license," said Inspector William Reardon to Dong. Dong handed over the negro's license.

"Write your name," commanded Inspector Reardon of Dong, who wrote "John."

"What's your last name; write that," said Inspector Reardon.

"I haven't any," replied Dong.

Most any Chinese could write "John" but Dong couldn't write "Johnny," which was on Gabriel's license, so Inspector Reardon concluded there was something wrong and turned them over to South Boston police.

ZEPPELIN HOPS AGAIN TONIGHT

the planet from the Statue of Liberty.

In command of the Graf will be Capt Ernest Lehmann, Dr. Hugo Eckener's chief aide, who will have charge while Dr. Eckener remains in America.

Among the other passengers will be three American naval air officers, who will make the flight as the guests of Dr. Eckener. They are Lieut.-Comdr. H. V. Wiley, commanding officer of the Los Angeles, Lieut.-Comdr. J. M. Shoemaker, head of the aeronautical engine service of the U. S. navy, and Lieut. Roland G. Mayer, attached to the navy construction corps.

GRATEFUL TO U. S.

America's assistance to Eckener in the round-the-world flight and earlier transatlantic crossing is being repaid in part at least through Dr. Eckener's insistence that American naval officers travel aboard the dirigible on every possible occasion.

This experience is expected by American navy chiefs to prove invaluable in construction of the two airships now being built for the Navy by the Goodyear Zeppelin Co. at Akron, O.

The American officers are traveling at no expense to the American Government, as the Germans extend their hospitality to the return trip aboard German steamships.

The Graf's freight will include lawn mowers, machine castings, oils, shoes, scientific instruments and dental instruments. Also included will be a radio set to be presented to the King of Spain.

Also on board will be six passengers who started their world flight on the Zeppelin at Friedrichshafen. They are: Dr. J. Megias, physician to the King of Spain; Lieut.-Col. Cristoph Iselin, retired Swiss army officer; Leo Gerville-Reache, French correspondent; H. Von Perkheimer, German cameramen, and H. Geisenheimer and Gustav Kauderm, German newspapermen.

Dr. Eckener will sail for Germany Sept. 7 on the liner New York, accompanied by Dr. Karl Schmidt, legal adviser for the Zeppelin Co., and Count A. von Soden, of Friedrichshafen, vice-president of the Zeppelin fund.

Dr. Eckener will see his ship off tonight, return to New York early tomorrow and leave for Cleveland, Sunday night, with S. W. von Meister, his American representative.

He expects to go from Cleveland to Akron Monday night for conferences with officials of the Goodyear Zeppelin Co. and officials of the American Zeppelin Co. regarding airship construction and aeronautical traffic routes.

Four Hurt as Truck Hits Dedham Trolley

A motorman and three passengers on a Boston-bound street car of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway were slightly injured and 20 other passengers shaken up today when the car was sideswiped by a truck operated by Edward J. Stevens of Cotton st., East Braintree, on Washington st., Dedham, today.

The injured were:

Edward Wipperman, Washington st., Westwood, cuts on head.

Mrs. Mary DeRose and her son Philip of 1076 Washington st., Dedham, cuts on head and face.

According to the police the accident occurred when Stevens fell asleep at the wheel of his truck, which was bound towards Norwood.

The accident occurred when traffic on the street car line was heavy and the car was filled with people going to their work. Most of the passengers were women.

According to Dilman, motorman, he saw the truck coming toward him. He said it suddenly swerved from the road and sideswiped the car running nearly the full length. All of those hurt were cut by flying glass broken from the windows of the car.

SOUTH BOSTON FATHER TO LET 2 TOTS SAIL AWAY TO IRELAND

BABIES TO BE CARED FOR BY KIN THERE

Liner Albertic Due to Depart Tomorrow With Many Passengers From Here

When the White Star liner Albertic sails from Commonwealth pier tomorrow, a father will be separated from his two motherless babies who are traveling alone to Ireland for the care of relatives.

The father, Joseph McCarthy of D st., South Boston, devised the plan for Helen, four, and her 15-months-old brother, following a year's struggle to keep the family together after the death of the mother.

One of the children has been cared for by Revere relatives and the other by kin in Jamaica Plain.

One passport was issued for both babies and they will be placed in the care of a stewardess for the journey to Queenstown.

Rev. Francis J. Dolan, S. J., president of Boston College, and Rev. Leonard Feeney, S. J., recently ordained and assigned to the college are among the passengers booked from here.

Others due to sail include Rev Dr. W. H. van Allen, Mrs. Willard C. Warren, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Farren, Henry C. Thacher, L. B Thacher and Miss Elizabeth Thacher, Charles F. Mason and Miss Mary Belcher of Boston.

Renew Efforts to Get Air Markings

The Weirs, N. H., Aug. 31—To consider further efforts in securing air markings in New England communities and to discuss other phases of aviation development, representatives of the six New England States, comprising the members of the New England Council's co-operating committee on aeronautical development, met here.

Chairman Howard Coonley, president of the Walworth company of Boston, and Col. J. W. Gilson, assistant adjutant general of Connecticut, flew to the meeting from their home cities.

Chelsea Aldermen Protest Auto Rates

A resolution protesting against the big increase in compulsory insurance rates for Chelsea for 1930 was today received by Insurance Commissioner Merton L. Brown at the State House from the Chelsea board of aldermen. A separate letter of protest was also received from Rep. John W. McLeod of Chelsea.

The commissioner left today for a brief week-end vacation in Maine, the first respite he has had since taking office nearly a year ago.

Actress Is Fined as Drunken Driver

Springfield, Aug. 31—Mrs. Lillian Magee, 30, known on the stage as Lillian Darey, was arrested by Longmeadow police on charges of operating an auto while intoxicated and drunkenness. She pleaded guilty to both charges in district court and was fined $90 on the first charge and $15 on the drunkenness charge.

Her husband, Irwin Magee of 120 Central st., paid the fines. Mrs Magee said she was driving from New York to spend the weekend with her husband.

New Scout Cruiser on First Trial Spin

The cruiser, which was launched last January, will proceed down the Delaware river as far as the Capes and return. The Salt Lake City is a craft of 10,000 tons and cost $11,000,000. She is expected to develop a speed of more than 33 knots an hour.

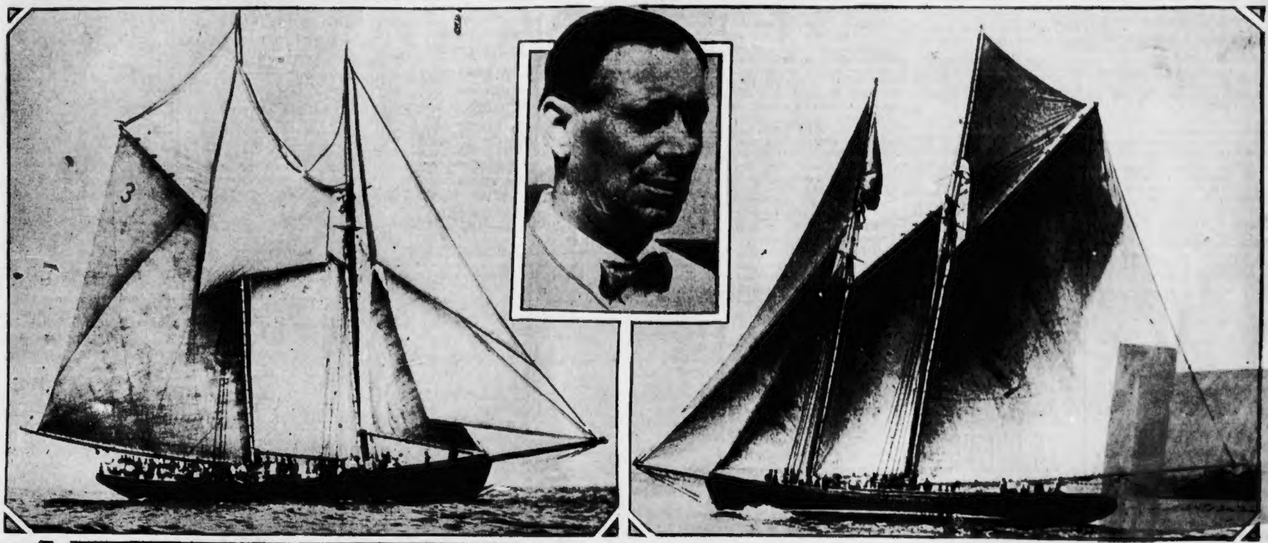
Man in Crash on Way to Dying Mother

Springfield, Aug. 31 (AP)—The car of Representative Fred A. Hazard of Saunderstown, R. I., member of the Rhode Island Legislature, collided with a motorcycle operated by Edward J. Melkun of East Longmeadow at an intersection east of this city today while Representative Hazard, accompanied by his chauffeur, was on his way to Syracuse, N. Y., where his mother is reported to be dying. Neither machine was seriously damaged and no one was injured.

Revere Burglars Use a Pickaxe

Using a pickaxe to break through the door, robbers early today in the small grocery store of Ettoe Giberti at Mountain ave. and Bradley st., Chelsea, took a small sum of money and several cartons of cigarettes. The pickaxe was the only clue.

Thousands Afloat and Ashore Watch Start of Fishermen's Races at Gloucester



The schooner Thomas Gorton, skippered by Capt. Wallace Parsons, third to cross the starting line off Eastern Point breakwater, Gloucester, in the first of the races of four schooners for the championship of the North Atlantic fishing fleets. Thousands afloat and ashore witnessed the beginning of the 37½ nautical miles classic. (International Newsreel photos.)

Last to get away and praying for a heavier wind before the finish, was the schooner Progress, with Capt. Manuel Domingos at the wheel in place of the famous Marty Welch. A light northwest wind indicated that the race would not be fast, and there was reason for speculation whether it would be finished within the time limit of seven hours.

LOCOMOTIVE IN 'SOLO' CRASH

Fifty passengers on a local New Haven train to Framingham were delayed in leaving the South Station early today when a switching engine on Track 7, just outside the terminal, was derailed.

The locomotive, in charge of Engineer Charles Malpus, was crossing a switch when in some unexplained manner all wheels left the rails and it bumped along over the ties.

Engineer Malpus was running slowly at the time and brought it to an immediate stop. The locomotive was not damaged and was replaced on the rails after a short delay.

Bike Endurance Record Smashed

Manchester, N. H. Aug. 31—For the third time within a week the alltime solo bicycle riding endurance record was broken in Manchester when Clement Michaud passed his 60th hour of unbroken riding. With his heart set on a new 75-hour record Michaud planned to continue through until today.

Fingerprint Expert Hunts Cape Cod Thief

Accompanied by Roscoe D. Hill, State fingerprint expert, two State police officers were en route to the summer home of Mrs. Henry H. Fay, at Woods Hole, to investigate the theft of $10,000 of jewelry at the summer estate.

While the State officers are in the vicinity of Cape Cod they will make an effort to clear up the mystery of ten other daring breaks in exclusive summer homes.

The officers will question every employe on the Fay estate. The employes will also be fingerprinted.

The only slight clue the police have been able to get came from Phyllis Motley, 12-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Motley and granddaughter of Mrs. Fay.

The little girl today told police that at about 2 a. m. on Friday she was awakened by someone walking about the house. She said she thought the noise came from her mother's room, but she paid no attention to it because she believed her mother was walking around.

The fact that all of the windows are screened and hooked on the inside and that there is no evidence that any of the screens had been disturbed, mystifies the police.

According to both Mr. and Mrs. Motley the front and rear doors to the house were locked before midnight on Friday.

Mrs. Motley said today most of the gems stolen were of sentimental value.

The police also revealed today that the robber had overlooked two diamond rings valued at $15,000. These rings were found undisturbed in the dresser in Mrs. Motley's room.

Extra precautions have been taken to prevent a repetition of gem robberies in the exclusive estates on the Cape. Extra details of State constabulary men have been rushed to this territory.

North Station New Domain of Whitey

"Whitey," a five-year-old, snow white and 22¼ pound cat, is no longer without a home. For "Whitey" has been adopted by the Boston & Maine Trainmen's Association, and he henceforth will dwell in their quarters in the new North Station.

The cat had been reared from a kitten by the Murray family of Orchard st., Jamaica Plain. Just before that family moved away they brought the cat to Dr. W. A. Young of the Animal Rescue League.

LADY HEATH NOT OUT OF DANGER

Cleveland, O., Aug. 31 (AP)—Lady Mary Heath, Irish aviatrix, critically injured Thursday when her plane fell during the national air races, today was reported "resting comfortably" at Lakeside Hospital after an operation for skull fractures.

The optimistic report was issued after she had spent a fairly easy night, it was said. Danger of infection and its attendant meningitis held back outright prediction of recovery, however.

Erwin Kirk, 26, mechanic, who was with Lady Mary when her plane dropped through a factory roof in landing at a test field, still was under treatment for minor injuries.

Six File Petitions in Bankruptcy Court

Stolid Men Are Best Fliers, Lindbergh Says

By HOMER H. METZ.
International News Service Aviation Editor.

(Copyright, 1929, by International News.)

Cleveland, Aug. 31—If you have an excessive imagination, stifle it as quickly as possible or else abandon all thoughts of ever becoming a successful airplane pilot and devote your talents to less spectacular phases of aviation.

This, in effect, is the latest advice that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh gives to young men who might aspire to a portion of the aeronautical glory that is his.

"Flying," said Lindbergh, "will always be a great strain on a pilot's nerves. A man with an active imagination is invariably more nervous, more sensitive, than the more stolid type of man. It follows, then, doesn't it, that the best pilots come from the latter type.

"However, a pilot needs imagination—in moderation. A man without some imagination can no more hope to make good at flying a plane than he can hope to make good at any other endeavor. But if his imagination runs away with him, as it does with many men, if he is a dreamer, then he should become a business executive or a participant in the other side of flying—the business side."

15 FLEE, HOMES IN FIRE PERIL

Fifteen people were driven out and damage to the extent of $2800 resulted from an early morning fire in a two and a half story dwelling on Glenarm st., Mattapan.

Louis Kaliss, owner of the house, his wife and three children, was obliged to flee from the second floor when fire broke out in the dining room of their apartment, from a short-circuited electric light wire.

The fire spread rapidly through the house. The firemen laid several lines of hose before they got the blaze under control. Flaming sparks and embers landed on several houses in the neighborhood and for a while houses nearby were threatened.

Use El to Speed Up Mail Deliveries

In order that the mail deliveries between the north and south postal stations and to the main postoffice at the foot of State st. can be speeded up, Elevated trains on the Atlantic ave. branch will carry the mail beginning Monday.

The new plan for transportation of mail was devised by Postmaster Charles R. Gow, who in making the change had in mind the serious traffic congestion between the three important postal points during the day.

Curtis Is Only High Official in Capital

Washington, Aug. 31 (AP) — By nightfall Vice-President Curtis will be the only high official of the government left in the capital. For one of the few times in recent history, the President and every member of his cabinet will be out of the city at the same time.

Triple Murder Is Bared by Workmen

Perryville, Md., Aug. 31 (INS)—Discovery of what is believed to be a brutal triple murder mystery was revealed here today by three highway employes who found the bones of a man, woman and child in the woods near here. The gruesome objects were wrapped in a Baltimore newspaper of July 21, 1929 date.

Army Flier Dies of Injury in Nicaragua

Managua, Nicaragua, Aug. 31 (AP)—Lieut. Dwight J. Canfield of Minnesota, army pilot of a bombing plane which crashed here yesterday on its way to Panama, died today in the U. S. Marine Hospital. Until shortly before his death he was thought to have good chances for recovery.

BOSTON DAY by DAY

By FRED TOYE

PEOPLE are interesting for what they do, not for what they are. Colossal wealth all too frequently carries with it a troublesome burden of caution, suspicion and unrest. Like shafts of glad sunlight, shine the lives of those who know how to put their wealth to work, adding to the world's knowledge and faith and happiness. One of the most interesting and fascinating women of Greater Boston is Mrs Mary Beecher Longyear of Fisher Hill, Brookline. For more than four score years she has employed her brilliant intellect and her warm human sympathies in making the world a better and happier and more beautiful place.

THE LONGYEAR residence, crowning the summit of Fisher Hill, is a palace of dreams. The home stood originally on the shore of Lake Superior. The immense structure of Lake Superior brownstone was taken apart and moved to Boston stone by stone, and set up on a gravelly hill, which is now one of the most beautiful spots in America. A journey through the scores of salons and reception rooms, galleries, libraries and music rooms is a tour of wonder upon wonder. The great music room, leading off a magnificent galleried reception hall, has three great murals by the American artist, Max Bohm, symbolizing the influence of classic music.

SIGNIFICANT of the desire to place knowledge before all seekers, is Mrs. Longyear's immense library of religious works. Thousands of carefully assembled volumes cover all Christian religions and the origins of the Hebrew faith. Many rare and precious Bibles are in her collection. A special door has been built, giving access to it for interested visitors. Clergymen and students in all parts of the United States make constant use of the volumes on the shelves. They have only to write for a catalogue and designate the works they wish to borrow. Books are sent to them with carrying charges prepaid, and may be kept indefinitely without charge. Included in the library are many rare works on Egyptology and Assyriology. In both of these sciences the chatelaine of the mansion is a deep student.

AN ALL-EMBRACING sympathy is the shining characteristic of this remarkable woman. We find numerous rare photographs, sketches and prints of Abraham Lincoln; intimate relics of Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy, and a unique and valuable collection of pictures of all the ancient California missions. The Patriarch of Jerusalem is her close friend. It is Mrs. Longyear's delight to pilot an appreciative visitor about the wondrous rooms, through the sunken gardens and Egyptian gardens, around the lovely pool and through English gardens, gay with old-fashioned mignonettes, zinnias, petunias and sweet-smelling blooms of a hundred varieties.

ONE OF THE MOST striking of the scores of portraits in the Longyear mansion is a painting of the late John Munro Longyear. It is the work of Seymour Thomas, and is life-size. Mr. Longyear is shown in corduroys, just as he came out of [illegible]way after acquiring Spitzbergen. "Yes. My husband owned Spitzbergen," Mrs. Longyear calmly assured me when I gasped at her casual remark.

"He found coal there which burned without an ash. He discovered that no one owned it, and negotiated with the various governments for its possession. During the World War he sold it to Norway."

STILL ANOTHER great American artist has a place of honor on the estate. Cyrus Dallin is the sculptor responsible for the great central monument fronting the pool. The piece is called the "Family Record." It is a heroic-sized angelic figure in bronze, holding aloft a newborn infant representing the new generation. The background of the bronze group is a white sandstone monolith bearing the names and vital records of all the members of the Longyear family.

IN ALL THIS LOVELINESS, one is conscious of a great spiritual influence. Peace, gentleness, and an intense faith in what the future holds, combine strangely with a vital actuality and a practical employment of all those things which lie at hand to make life a thing to be lived to its fullest and its best purpose.

Alderman Quits Somerville Race

Alderman Charles C. Grimmons, a past president of the Somerville board of aldermen, announced today that in the interest of harmony in the Republican party, he was retiring from the contest for the Republican nomination for mayor of Somerville. There are five candidates now left in the field for the Republican nomination for mayor, Senator Warren C. Daggett, Aldermen Robert C. Harris, W. Stuart Howe, Enoch B. Robertson and David Y. Ross.

NEW SUPPLY OF BUTTERFISH REACHES HUB

Butterfish made its first appearance in several weeks at the Fish Pier today, brought in from No Man's Land on the schooners Julia and St. Rita.

Wholesalers quoted the price off the vessel at 9½ to 10 cents per pound.

A fleet of four steam trawlers and nine schooners made up the arrivals today, bringing groundfish mostly from the South Channel.

The trawler Tide was high liner among the steamers with 105,000 haddock, 10,000 large cod and 13,000 mixed fish.

Among the schooners the Dawn registered highest with 64,000 haddock, 6000 large cod, 6000 market cod, 3000 pollock and 17,000 hake from South Channel.

The week ending today showed receipts far ahead of the corresponding week last year, with 5,493,750 pounds of groundfish received against 4,699,950 last year.

Receipts from the first of the year show an increase of 27,080,502 pounds over last year. Total receipts this year reached the mark of 176,649,912 pounds against 149,569,110 pounds last year.

Wholesalers quoted the following prices ex-vessel: Large cod, 5 to 5½ cents per pound; markets, 4 to 4½; haddock, 46 to 5; pollock, hake and cusk, 3½ to 4; swordfish, 24 to 25; blinks, 5 to 6; lemon soles, 4½ to 5, and dabs, 4 to 4½ cents.

5 CONFESS TO 75 HOLDUPS

Chicago, Aug. 31 (INS)—Seventy-five holdups were confessed today by five dapper bandits who were disarmed by a lone detective.

With his revolver drawn, Sergt. Clarence Sweeney walked into a hotel room and forced the five to surrender and hand over their guns.

The prisoners are: Ace Melville, 22, former pugilist; Lester Cook, 36; Frank Gavigan, 21; William Zimmerman, 28, and Donald Wilson.

They already have been identified by 40 robbery victims.

Melrose Man Held in Charlestown Attack

Edward A. Lapham, 35, of Fields st., Melrose, in Charlestown court today was charged with assaulting and robbing Herbert Loveless, Myrtle st., East Somerville. Special Officer Twohig and Patrolman Pearson, who arrested Lapham, said he beat Loveless and robbed him of $10 on Haverhill st., Charlestown last Sunday night. Loveless' jaw was broken.

Judge Brown held Lapham in $5000 for hearing Wednesday. Police are seeking a girl in the case.

Man Held in $5000 in Scollay Sq. Fire

Frank R. Pallace was held in $5,000 today by Judge Murray on a charge of arson. Pallace is alleged to have started a fire in a Scollay sq. building August 7 after an altercation with one of the owners.

Myopia Horse Show at Hamilton Tops Labor Day Attractions on North Shore; Cohasset Folk Plan Yacht Races

LABOR DAY BRINGS THE great event of the season for the younger generation of horseback riders, for on that date the Myopia Horse Show takes place before a notable gathering of society at Cilley Field, Hamilton. The place has been changed from the Myopia Hunt Club polo field to the field opposite the club gates, because of the condition of the track due to the continued drouth. Junior riders who will take the jumps include Miss Madelyn Phillips, Miss Natalia Folsom, Miss Nancy Shaw, Miss Betsy Califoux, Miss Anne P. Ayer, Ethan and Frederick Ayer, Jr., and Miss Phyllis Tuckerman. A large entry of jumpers is made by Alvin F. Sortwell.

YOUNG RIDERS SHOWING off the paces of their thoroughbreds in the junior saddle class will be Misses Julia and Louise Barbour, Frederick H. Prince, 3rd, and Miss Peggy Pierce. Miss "Toodie" Pierce has also learned to ride, and with Miss Jean Cochrane will compete with very young gentlemen for pony prizes. Famous hunters from the Augustus F. Goodwin, the Flying Horse Farm (Sumner Pingree) and the Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., stables will top the timbers for the Kennewick Cup, ridden by Mrs. Frederick Ayer, Miss E. R. Sears, Miss Alice Thorndike and others.

ONE OF THE INTERESTING events of the show will be the performance of green hunters competing for the coveted Abbott Cup. The number of entries for this from local stables indicates the interest in training horses for the hunt, and this class will be watched with keen eyes by every owner. Exhibitors of fine saddle horses include Miss Nancy Olney with Grey Wave, Mrs. C. W. Taintor with Thrice Told, Mrs. R. L. Whitman with Sportsman, and Miss Alice Thorndike with Herself and Excitement, exhibited by Mr. and Mrs. Bayard Tuckerman.

COHASSETERS ARE LOOKING forward eagerly to the national women's championship boat races which open next Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock, sponsored by the Cohasset Yacht Club. Commodore Hugh Bancroft has announced that two picked crews of "sailors" from that port are entered for this event. One of these is captained by Miss Adelaide Brown, sailing with Miss Barbara Fitch and Miss Katharine Bartow. The other is captained by Miss Esther Sears, who has Miss Helen Fitch and Miss Katharine Johnson for sailing mates. The races take place off Cohasset with entries from Duxbury, Marblehead, Stonington, Ct., and other places.

MANY BOSTON GUESTS will attend the wedding of Miss Katherine Simonds, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Simonds of Washington, and Lovell Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Thompson of Cambridge at noon on Monday in the church of Eaton Center, N. H. Two Cambridge men, George P. Baker, Jr., and Charles F. Walcott will be ushers at the wedding and Delmar Leighton of Cambridge will act as best man. Two other ushers will be Theodore L. Eliot of New York, William H. Gratwick of Linwood, N. Y., and James C. Simonds of Washington. Mrs. James C. Carey, 3rd of Baltimore will be the matron of honor and the bridesmaids will include Misses Corrine Chamber and Josephine Young, New York, Bettina Linn and Elinor Anram of Philadelphia, Sarah Morton of Fall River and Elizabeth Linn of Chicago.

Miss Sally Curtis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Curtis, Jr., of Norfolk, enjoyed the fair held by sub-debs at Monteserrat Golf Club, recently, for the benefit of the Children's Hospital.

EVERY RETURNING LINER brings home some debutante or one about to make her bow. Miss Henrietta Sedgewick who has been studying art in Europe has returned and has joined her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ellery Sedgewick of Monteserrat and Beacon Hill. Mrs. James M. Newell and her daughter, Miss Alice Newell, arrived yesterday from Cherbourg on the Olympic and Miss Elizabeth Morison is due to arrive early next week from Paris. Miss Polly Winslow, attractive daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Frederick Winslow of Clarendon st., and Mrs. George R. Fearing of Westwood are among the vacationists expected next week from foreign travels.

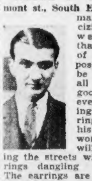
The Curious Quizzer

Park Sq. Pedestrians Answer His Question and Pose for Pictures

Today's question was sent in by "Bostonian," in the following letter:

"Curious Quizzer, Dear Sir:—I enjoy reading your column from time to time. I would like to have you ask four people some time this week the following question, as I would like to know what the average person's opinion of this question is.

The Question: Do you think it would be proper for men to wear earrings?



VICTOR J. RICHARDS, Tremont st., South End—The average man is forever criticizing women for wearing clothing that leaves much of their bodies exposed. He would soon be talked about by all women, with good reason, if he ever takes to dolling up in a pair of rings hanging from his ears. No man worthy of the name will be found parading the streets with barbaric earrings dangling about his face. The earrings are made for women and let them be worn by women. Men wou[illegible] look effeminate in earrings and s[illegible] be ashamed to think of ever a[illegible]rning themselves with such gewgaws.

THOMAS A. LANNIGAN, Sackville, N. B.—Earrings are worn by men in many foreign countries. If it is proper to wear them in one place why try to condemn the practice in America? At present the majority of men would not favor wearing earrings, it is true; but just let one or two society fellows start the fad and it will be only days later when thousands of others of the male gender will follow suit. As an example, take silk underwear for men. We all laughed at the idea for a while. Today men are wearing little else but silk "undies."

MRS. FLORENCE COHEN, Seaver st., Roxbury—No man with common sense would allow himself to appear in public with a pair of earrings. If any man attempts such foolishness he will be hooted from the streets. One knows that a regular he-man could not be coddled into wearing earrings even if his sweetheart favored such nonsense. But no girl would ever dream of wanting a husband who was vain enough to believe his appearance could be made more appealing by rings stuck in his ears. I know there are some countries where men wear earrings, but thank goodness there is no danger of our men in this country being so silly as to wear such impossible decorations.

* * *

COURT 'SEIZES' NEWSPAPERS

Macon, Ga., Aug. 31 (AP)—Federal Judge Bascom S. Deaver today ordered into custody of his court by agreement of counsel, all of the stock of four newspapers involved in the Hall-Lavarre newspaper suit and approximately $54,000 remaining in the hands of William Lavarre.

The order listed a certified check for $18,094.24, $15,000 in the hands of Lavarre attorneys and checks for $21,546.09 on Spartanburg and Columbia, S. C., banks. The additional sum of $7500 also was entered, but it was stipulated it was subject to attachment of Palmer, Dewitt & Palmer, newspaper brokers of New York.

148 SOUGHT BY SHERIFF AFTER MILL RIOT

Marion, N. C., Aug. 31 (AP)—Sheriff's officers, with 148 warrants, all of which charge "inciting a riot," began today a hunt for the men and women who last night drove officers from the Clinchfield mill village with clubs and stones.

The trouble, the outgrowth of a strike at the Clinchfield Manufacturing Company, resulted in four companies of National Guardsmen being sent here.

Streets of the mill villages were being patrolled by the militiamen as the court attaches continued their work of serving warrants, which included one for Alfred E. Hoffman, Southern organizer for the United Textile Workers, branch of the American Federation of Labor.

Before noon today the officers had jailed 38 men and one woman, all of whom were charged with participating in the riot. Hoffman, however, had not been arrested.

With 38 in custody, others were being brought to the McDowell jail as fast as they could be found and arrested.

Lowman Seeking Aid of State Officials

Washington, Aug. 31 (AP)—Assistant Secretary Lowman of the Treasury Department said today that despite the refusal of the New York city police authorities to cooperate with the prohibition bureau in suppressing under State nuisance statutes speakeasies and road houses, the bureau will continue to seek the aid of State authorities over the country.

PASSENGER AIR RATES NOW 2C A POUND

By GEORGE W. HAMBLIN

"How much do you weigh?"

"One hundred and fifty pounds."

"One fifty, eh? Well, $3 and you fly. Climb in. Thank you. Who's next?"

Such is the conversation that is going on at the Boston Airport today, and which will be heard tomorrow and Monday by persons who go to the end of the new road, behind the Colonial hangar.

Tom Croce and Val Chick are planning to haul passengers for two cents a pound over the week-end. Both fly Challenger planes and are determined to give the experiment a wide chance. They have been carrying passengers for years at the airport at the established price of $5, but now believe that the public should be given some incentive to go aloft.

"I have been trying for a long time to keep the price at $5 but the time is fast approaching when there won't be any joy-hopping done at that price, and we independents might just as well crash in and start the idea off," Croce said. "It is a sure bet that the big companies will not fall in line, because they have so many other means of making both ends meet. Chick and I are positive that there will be more people carried in our ships over the week-end than ever before."

Both are licensed pilots and the ships carry registrations and licenses of the United States Department of Commerce.

New England's first outdoor aviation show opened today at the Falmouth Municipal Airport. Every type of modern airplane used in the eastern part of the country is at the airport down on the Cape. The crowd expected has surpassed even the fondest dreams of the two managers, Bill Denny and Bob Townsend.

The program consists of speed races, bomb dropping, dead stick landings and parachute jumps.

If anyone becomes interested in a certain airplane and the chances are that one will buy it, a salesman will give a demonstration.

Thus the show will have it on an indoor affair, where no actual flights can be made.

Townsend predicts that the number of planes sold will set a record for New England.

With a handshake all around, Lieut. Elmer Rodgers, who has been flying for Curtiss for the past month, climbed into his automobile and started for San Antonio, Tex., where he is an instructor in advanced acrobatics in the Army flying school, Kelley Field.

During his stay here, "Rod" flew 140 hours and 47 minutes in a 35-day period. All this time was logged without an accident.

"Rod" had his course laid out for the long drive to Texas, and hopes to make it in less than the seven days it required him to come to Boston. He was accompanied by his wife and three-year-old baby.

Received a letter from F. W. Fowler, of Auburn, R. I. Fowler works at the Champion Aircraft Corp., in Auburn.

Thanks, F. W., for your invitation to take a hop in your new ship. We will be right on the spot when you arrive.

Maj. Robert F. "Bugs" Raymond, Army Reserve Air Corps, will go on active duty at the Boston Airport tomorrow, for two weeks. "Bugs" is one of the youngest majors in the air corps.

U. S. PACT NEAR —M'DONALD

On Board Premier MacDonald's Train, England, Aug. 31 (AP)—Premier Ramsay MacDonald, regarding his conversations with American representatives on naval disarmament, today asserted: "I have nothing more to say at the moment, but if the chicken is not duly hatched I shall be the most surprised man living.'

As to The Hague conference, he said: "Whatever may have been the feeling of people while the negotiations were going on, its results are undoubtedly going to be for the good of Europe and of the greatest assistance to the League of Nations.

"Discussions and agrements that are to be the foundations of peace must contain the element of objective fair play. That was the battle that the British government had to fight and which Mr. Snowden conducted. I don't believe it will have to be fought again.

"In our international discussions we shall now begin not to impose something upon each other, but to negotiate and negotiate until the agreement to be reached is acceptable to everybody involved."

Army Planes in War Game Land at Keene

Keene, N. H., Aug. 31—Three of the army airplanes which will form a part of the aviation unit which will take part in the annual fall maneuvers in this section of New Hampshire and the Connecticut valley in Vermont, had arrived here from Boston. An aviation base has been established at the Granite State flying school.

Considerable secrecy surrounded troop movements and evidences of a wartime ban on public information existed.

SEXTON HELD IN KIDNAPING

George Sexton, 35, of Clarence st., Roxbury, was held in $5000 for the Suffolk Grand Jury on a charge of kidnaping Joseph Sherman of Boston, when arraigned before Judge Cutler in Chelsea today.

Sexton is the third man arrested in connection with the kidnaping of Sherman from a high stake dice game in Revere two weeks ago. Others arrested are George Gilbert of Weymouth and John J. Roach of Dorchester. Gilbert is in Charles st. jail awaiting grand jury action. Roach is held in Norfolk County jail, Dedham, on a charge of robbery.

Sherman, according to the police, was taken to a house in Weymouth Landing, where he was held prisoner for three days pending payment of $20,000 ransom which was to be demanded of his relatives.

His release was brought about by accident when a furniture claim agent took Capt. Butler of the Weymouth police to a house to seize $7000 worth of furnishings purchased in Gilbert's name. Butler then placed Roach under arrest charging theft of a $350 diamond pin and money.

Rosenstein Heads Chelsea Society

At a recent meeting of the Murro Sigma Klub of Chelsea, Samuel Rosenstien was elected president. Other members elected were: Harry Natkin, vice-president; Timothy Kane, treasurer; Lester Hurwitz, secretary, and Albert Levine, sergeant-at-arms. Preparations for the annual dance in the near future were also commenced.

Germans Score Use of Ship in Revolt

Hamburg, Germany, Aug. 31 (AP)—The trading community here has issued a joint declaration severely condemning the "misuse" of the steamer Falke, formerly of German registry, which was employed by Venezuelan revolutionaries in a recent attack on the port of Cumana.

STATE AIRPORT MAY COST R. I. $1,000,000

Providence, Aug. 31—Possibility of establishing a $1,000,000 State Airport within eight miles of this city loomed today when Governor Norman S. Case announced he was considering asking the U. S. Commerce Department to make a survey of airport sites in this State.

At the elections last fall the people authorized the State officials to expend $300,000 for an airport, and Governor Case appointed a commission to select a site.

A tract of land in Hills Grove was chosen by the commission, but because it lacked facilities for seaplanes the Providence Chamber of Commerce and other commercial organizations protested.

The Gaspee Point site, which is nearer this city and which would provide facilities for seaplanes, was favored by the commercial groups.

Harry T. Bodwell, chairman of the State Airport Comission explained that Hills Grove was selected because the commission could keep within the appropriation of $300,000 and the Gaspee Point site would cost a great deal of money.

Despite Mr. Bodwell's argument the commercial groups have carried their fight to Governor Case and have asked him to request a Federal survey.

STATE AIMS TO SEND STRIKERS TO CHAIR

Charlotte, N. C., Aug. 31—It was disclosed today in the Gastonia mill strike murder trial that the State will fight for a verdict that will send the 13 indicted men to the electric chair, and that the defense will fight for nothing short of a complete acquittal.

Solicitor J. G. Carpenter, chief of state counsel, reiterated his intention to ask a first degree verdict for the men, but, only second degree verdicts, which spell long prison sentences, against Vera Buch, Amy Schechter and Sophie Melvin, the three women defendants.

Thus far the State has succeeded in challenging for cause a number of potential jurymen who admitted a disbelief in capital punishment.

The defense on the other hand has asked the prospective jurors: "Do you believe in a man's right to defend his life or property against unwarranted invasion of an officer?"

Furthermore, the defense is challenging all members of the American Legion on the ground that members of the Gastonia Post did guard duty during the strike disturbance that preceded the murder of Police Chief Aderholt.

Seven jurors have been accepted.

UNSCRAMBLE THESE ANAGRAMBLES

DAILY ANAGRAM PUZZLES

THE game sensation that has swept America. The rules are simple. You are given, for instance, the word "tear" to unscramble with the letter "h." The Anagramble is "heart." Similarly, to unscramble the word "link" with "s" the Anagramble is "slink."

Remember, you cannot make an Anagramble with a plural—"links" would be wrong. You have to change the complete meaning of the word—"slink" is therefore correct. Nor can you make a different tense of word. For instance, to unscramble "read" with "s" you cannot make it "reads."

You must change the complete meaning. The Anagramble, therefore, is "dears." Now try your hand at these Anagrambles

(1) FIELDS—Unscramble with the letter T.
(2) BLARE—Unscramble with the letter G.
(3) TAKES—Unscramble with the letter C.
(4) PANIC—Unscramble with the letter G.
(5) ALIVE—Unscramble with the letter N.

Yesterday's Anagrambles and their solutions:

(1) TONSIL plus O equals LOTIONS.
(2) RACES plus S equals SCARES.
(3) HEATS plus C equals SCATHE.
(4) FIELD plus D equals FIDDLE.
(5) GREAT plus I equals GAITER.

Says Aching Corn Made Car Swerve

Andover, Aug. 31—An aching corn was the excuse given by Vitaline Demers of Bradford st., Lawrence, to Patrolman Carl Stephens when the car she was operating swerved, forcing his car over to the opposite side of the road.

The policeman said that he intended to obtain a summons, as he was not satisfied with the reason given him when he questioned the woman.

CONGRESS ST. TO BE CLOSED FOR A YEAR

Congress st., South Boston, from Dorchester ave. to Sleeper st., one of the heaviest traffic thoroughfares in the city, will be closed for a period of about one year, starting Sept. 4.

Announcement to that effect was made by the Boston Traffic Commission, following receipt of a letter by Chairman William A. Fisher from John E. Carty, division engineer of the public works department.

Carty wrote that Coleman Bros., contractors in charge of rebuilding the Congress st. bridge, intend to close it Wednesday morning, Sept. 4, at 5 a. m.

In consequence, Chairman Fisher announced the closing of that portion of the street from Dorchester ave. to Sleeper st. to all travel, vehicular and pedestrian, for the period of construction, estimated at one year.

Fine Fight Manager $125 in Auto Case

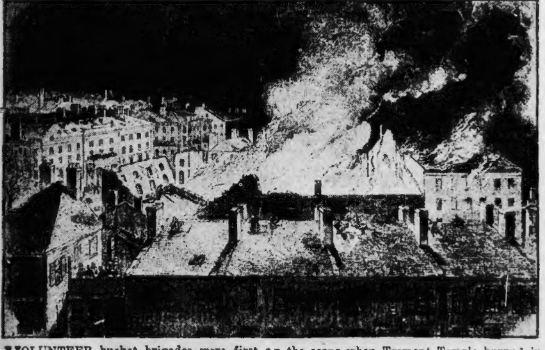
Old Boston in Pictures—No. 45



VOLUNTEER bucket brigades were first on the scene when Tremont Temple burned in 1852. That blaze, however, wasn't one that could be put out by hand. When the regular fire department, red shirts and all, arrived, its apparatus was as useless as the buckets had been. It was a great spectacle and the engraving, printed through courtesy of the Boston Athenaeum, shows the watchers on roofs and balconies. Another Old Boston picture will be published next Monday.

BIG "ZEPP"

Stocks Clicquot Club Sec in Sky "Cellar"

America's driest ginger ale chosen for flight. Double-carbonation insures sparkling zest and perfect "dry" flavor.

GIANT MONARCH OF THE AIR CONQUERS two oceans and three continents. Its historic flights represent one of the most stupendous achievements in the history of aviation.

All through the thrilling 3000 mile trip to New York, Clicquot Club Sec was available for enjoyment of passengers and crew . . . the last glass was sparkling as the first.

THE Graf Zeppelin has safely conquered two oceans . . . vast Asiatic wastes . . . the broad beam of the American continent!

And passengers and crew have found it as luxurious as the lounge of a great hotel, as snug and comfortable as the club car of an extra-fare train . . . perfectly appointed for fine living.

Like the great limited trains, like the smart, cosmopolitan hotels, the Graf Zeppelin carried in its "cellar" Clicquot Club Sec.

Long-lasting carbonation wins coveted place for Sec

Clicquot Club Sec was chosen, because of its fine, "dry" flavor. But there was another consideration. Bottles are heavy. The ginger ale had to be transferred to light aluminum tanks. A ginger ale had to be selected that would not lose its precious carbonation when poured out of its original bottle.

The ginger ale had to be transferred to aluminum drums. Because Clicquot Club Sec is double-carbonated it kept its zip and "go" under these unusual circumstances.

After careful tests, Clicquot Club Sec was selected. Because Sec has the driest flavor known in America. Because its double-carbonation insured sparkling freshness where ordinary ginger ales would have "gone flat."

And so, all through the thrilling trip on the 3000 mile flight from Los Angeles to New York, passengers and crew could enjoy the rare flavor of Clicquot Club Sec. Despite the fact it had been removed from the Clicquot bottles, all of the zest and "go" was still there . . . the last glass was as sparklingly "dry" and spirited as the first.

Drink a toast to quality!

Clicquot Club Sec gives a new flavor thrill because it is "drier" than any other ginger ale.

People who have the wealth and leisure to know the good things of life pronounce Sec "the rarest flavor in America." Just ask for "SEC" at your dealer's.

CHEERIO IS THE DRAMA KEYNOTE

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

IN the gayer and more sumptuous days of the oral drama, Labor Day brought the Rialto to its first full flush of seasonal opulence. The hungry playgoer was regaled with an avalanche of new attractions—he was stuffed and gorged to the limit.

IT as no new or strange experience for the harried reviewer, back from a summer's relapse into comfortable idleness, to find new shows sprinkled like dust all over the old village. Whichever way you turned the drama hit the eye. Not infrequently eight, or even more, new plays descended upon the town in a night, not only to lure but also to bewilder you with their variety. Making first choice was a soldier's job.

Nicholas Young

THINGS are not the same. The new theatrical season in this Year of Our Lord, presents scant fare—though excellent. Three new attractions will invade the local playhouses, while the remaining temples of Thespis remain locked and dusty, or, as you might say of the Tremont, enjoying autumnal prosperity with a hip-hip-hoorah feature film. Even the adolescents can remember when Labor Day was both the theater's delight and its hope.

HOW much this apparent diminishing fervor points to even duller days ahead may not be too quickly seized upon by those who have tossed themselves, weeping, upon the drama's bier. The good old spoken play, although it may be a bit wobbly in parts, is still some distance from that special list reserved for the deceased. Jane Cowl, in a recent magazine article, has given the old boy ten years at the best; Arthur Hammerstein and Sam H. Harris, who ought to know better, have shortened his days even more—or should we say less?

AT any event, in any great physical crisis, you may always depend upon the morticians to be at easy call. The drama's dilemma is physical not cultural. The intelligent theatergoer still demands the spoken play and will pay for it at reasonable rates. Miss Cowl and Mr. Hammerstein have clearly exposed the theater's defects; Miss Cowl chides the actor and Mr. Hammerstein the manager. Their criticisms are leveled not so much upon a decline of the arts, as upon the blindness of the actor who interprets them, and the stubborn landlord manager.

NOW, we are not going to have a large grist of new plays for the season's opening celebration. But we are going to have some lively entertainment. Jim Tully's "Jarnegan," with Richard Bennett at the throttle, is expected to give playgoers a new insight into the misdeeds of Hollywood, and Mr. E. E. Clive is to take care of the Copley's growing clientele with "The Crooked Billet," a stirring melodrama from London

WE prefer to disagree on some points with both Mr. Hammerstein and Miss Cowl. The drama isn't exactly in collapse; it is just a little late in arriving. October will find it moving in full panoply.

Revelatory

LUCILLE BROWNE

WON HIS WAY BY WORK

RICHARD BENNETT, who plays the title role in Jim Tully's "Jarnegan," coming to the Wilbur next Monday, can look back upon himself at 21 clerking in a hotel in order to stay on the stage, and he can say to those in a similar struggling state:

"If a man loves the theater—and he shouldn't be in unless he does—there is no job on earth he shouldn't be willing to take temporarily to feed him while he haunts managers' offices. He should be willing to do anything. If not, he's a failure and shouldn't be in the theater."

MISS DAVIES IN NEW FILM NEXT WEEK

THE gala event in Los Angeles for the fall season will be the opening of the Cosmopolitan production "Marianne," starring the talented Marion Davies, at the Mayan theater, next Thursday. Not only fans but the film colony at Hollywood are making ready for this as the most brilliant affair of 1929. In this photoplay Miss Davies makes her debut in talking pictures one of the most eagerly anticipated events of the cinema year.

The story, which is of the World War, and laid in France, gives the leading comedienne of the films full opportunity to show her delightful singing voice, as well as reveal her ability at French.

The cast was chosen with unusual care, even for a day when all casts are as likely as not to be labeled "exceptional" and for a star, who always has had particular pains taken to secure the best talent to surround her

Thus, Lawrence Gray has the leading role of Stagg, the young American soldier with whom Marianne falls in love. George Baxter is Andre, Cliff Edwards, "Ukulele Ike," is Soapy; Scott Kolk is Frane; Benny Rubin, Yom; Duke Martin, sergeant; Emil Chautard, priest; Robert Edeson, general; Charles Crockett, colonel, and Oscar Apfel, major.

This isn't mentioning young Douglas Scott, who may be the screen's youngest character actor. Douglas is three and one-half, and he got his job chiefly because of his ability to talk French.

Miss Davies and Lawrence Gray sing together and separately. "Just You—Just Me," is a love ballad, and "Marianne" is the theme song.

Herb Brown and Arthur Freed, who wrote the song hits in "The Broadway Melody," contributed "Blondy" for "Marianne," in honor of Miss Davies.

Cliff Edwards strums "Sugar" and "Hang On To Me." It was decided in fact, after Ukulele Ike got halfway through with his work in this picture that the ukulele is a music making device ideally adapted to talking screen purposes. Edwards was so good that he was given a long term contract as soon as the rushes of his work with Miss Davies were seen.

"Marianne" gives Miss Davies a splendid background for all of her comedy moods, her impersonations and humorous pantomime. And it also gives her a vehicle which touches the heart with a fine love story.

Park Theater to Show First Run Photoplays

The Park Theater has been remodeled and redecorated, and the latest in sound equipment has been installed.

On or about Sept. 14, the house, under a new management, will open with a new policy of presenting from week to week first runs in New England of the season's foremost talking, singing and dancing moving picture productions.

Still in the Ring

Girl Athletic Stars in Norumbega Contest

Probably the biggest gathering of feminine athletes ever brought together in New England will compete on Saturday, September 7, at Norumbega Park, where record-holders and record-seekers will compete for championships.

The New England senior 100-yard dash will be one of the features. Olive Hasenfess, the 17-year-old girl who has sprinted over that distance in 11 2-5 seconds will be a competitor. Her time is within one-fifth of a second of the record for women.

Another feature will be the shot-putting of Rena McDonald, holder of the present world's record for the eight-pound shot. In addition to those two events, there will be the following championship events: baseball throw, running high jump, discus throw —all for seniors.

Dudley Theater Will Reopen on Labor Day

The Dudley theater will have its reopening next Monday, following a complete renovation at a cost of $100,000, with the installation of the latest in sound equipment. The management will carry through a policy of having a talking picture, a silent feature, comedy, latest newsreels and other films. On Sundays there will be a first run feature and five high class vaudeville acts.

Band to Play

The Central Sq. Theater, Cambridge, will present as a special feature attraction tomorrow evening, Joe Rines and his Triadors This is the only theater engagement Rines has played since his band was featured at the Metropolitan nearly a year ago.

HE ROSE FROM 'NEWSIE' TO STARDOM

ANY number of important men began life as newsboys. Billy Glason, now headlining the New B. F. Keith's bill, was a Boston newsboy. Before going on the stage he sold papers in this city and since going on the stage he exercised a sort of fatherly influence over the entire fraternity. He carries a fine Swiss watch of which he is exceedingly proud, a gift from the newsboys of Boston in appreciation of the work done in their behalf.

The program at Keith's this week is made up of a group of prominent vaudevillians, each one a headliner in his or her own right. There is the distinguished protean actor, Owen McGiveney, who is regarded as the world's greatest quick-change artist. Mr. McGiveney enacts the entire story of "Oliver Twist," playing all parts himself with six distinct characterizations and make-ups.

Florrie LeVere, well known to audiences as the feminine member of the popular Homes and LeVere act, has forsaken the old vehicle and presents a novel potpourri of songs, melody and dance which affords greater opportunities for the use of her many talents.

Williams and Joe Mandell, the agile comics, in addition to their own act, will present their famous afterpiece, "The Wager" with Owen McGiveney. This afterpiece is a burlesque on McGiveney's character study and a laugh a second is the guarantee to those who witness it.

The New Plays

WILBUR — Richard Bennett in "Jarnegan." The low-down on Hollywood, based on Jim Tully's popular novel. Dramatization by Charles Beahan and Garrett Fort. Settings by Clark Robinson; staged by Ira Hards. Produced by Jarnegan, Inc.

MAJESTIC—"Follow Thru," a musical comedy of country club life. Book by Laurence Schwab and B. G. De Sylva; songs by De Sylva, Brown and Henderson Book directed by Edgar MacGregor; musical numbers staged by Bobby Connolly; settings by Donald Oenslager. Produced by Schwab and Mandel.

COPLEY—"The Crooked Billet," a melodrama by Dion Titheradge (Opens tonight). Among Mr. Clive's new players are H. Charles Croker-King, Lorna Lawrence, Murray Kinnell, Marshall Vincent and Arthur Stenning. Staged by E. E. Clive.

GAYETY — "Burlesque Revue," with Harry (Pep) Pearce and Madlyn Beatty as the featured players. Presented in revue form with specialties, ensembles and speeded up by Holub's Gayety jazz orchestra.

WALDRON'S — "Night Club Girls," featuring Bobby Wilson, a popular burlesque comedian. In addition to the stage show there are two talking pictures, "The Studio Murder Case" and "Come Across."

Burlesquer

NELLI CASON

HER GOAL LAY IN FILMS

NORMA SHEARER, who is one of the featured stars of the musical revue motion picture, "Hollywood Revue," at the Tremont, was born in Montreal Miss Shearer left Canada intent on breaking into motion pictures. However, there were very few pictures being made in the east at that time, and she went through a month of doubt and disaster.

Nothing daunted, she continued her visits to the agencies and one day was selected as an extra in a mob scene. She graduated to small bits, and then small parts, eventually a featured role in "The Stealers," which opportunity came at the end of her first year.

HAL SKELLY AS STAR IN BIG FILM

Photoplay..."The Dance of Life"
Type ....Comedy Drama
Stars. Hal Skelly & Nancy Carroll
Theater....Uptown and Washington St. Olympia

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

"BURLESQUE," metamorphosed into the more poetic but less significant title, "The Dance of Life," brings a backstage play to the screen that is different from the run, and superior to most of the type. It offers a mighty entertaining picture of show life, without the usual baptism in a sea of sentimentality.

THIS photoplay, now showing at the Washington St. Olympia and Uptown, has mostly good points in its favor. It has good acting, good picturization, and a story of show folks that threads a golden way to the end. Its realism sticks out compellingly and keeps you clutched to the passing picture always, except when gaudy pageantry is introduced which may be O. K. in itself, but which gives no aid whatsoever to the progress of the plot. The appeal of these gorgeous reels is a personal one; probably the major portion of fans take it in good part, and enjoy it thoroughly. Without all the gaudy trappings, "The Dance of Life" would still remain a superb portrayal of goings on behind the footlights, in its strength and its weakness, its glitter and its shadows. It is a striking fact that it is to the talent brought in from the stage that this production owes almost all of its histronic value.

Dorothy Revier

HAL SKELLY, cast as the unheroic "hero," makes the hit of his career. Not that he is any better than on stage; but that millions will see him, and hear him, and enjoy him, where it was a matter of thousands before. A master mime so far as his specialties go, he can be truly said to have now established a high screen value for himself. The reason is that he has ignored all the old Hollywood tactics, and remains just what he has always been. He brings a living, breathing character to the throated camera, one that you will not admire, but one that you must regard as among the finest contributions of the year to movie acting.

• • •

MR. SKELLY meets every dramatic demand excellently. His "popping the question" while dancing with his partner, the role of Nancy Carroll, is beautifully done; here, too, Miss Carroll is seen at her best. While not up to the level of the stage talent in ability to throw herself into the story, Miss Carroll nevertheless is very attractive, dances well, and is mighty good to look upon. Her work here shows that she is seriously grasping opportunity in improving herself for her future in the talkies.

DOROTHY REVIER, as the vamp, is ordinarily able, but her part does not require much, and so she does not shine. You will like the rank and file of burlesque queens and lesser luminaries, especially May Boley who is the outstanding woman in "The Dance of Life" cast. Of the men besides Mr. Skelly the best are Charles D. Brown, Ralph Theador and Al St. John.

Her Will Is Not His Way

JEAN ARTHUR AND WARNER OLAND

MISS ARTHUR has pleaded with Mr. Oland, in "The Mysterious Dr. Fu Manchu" at the Publix Big Five, to quit his career of crime. But he is adamant to her entreaties.

Her Temple As Love's Shrine

ANITA PACE AND CONRAD NAGEL

FULL UPON the temple Mr. Nagel k[illegible] Miss Page in "Hollywood Revue," at the Tremont. It must have been about as sweet as it looks. She appears to enjoy it.

No Kid About That Shave

JANE LA VERNE AND EDDIE LEONARD

STAGE AND SCREEN

Youth Has Its Fling as Age Does the Proverbial Reaping in New Week's Film Offerings

HAL SKELLY AND NANCY CARROLL
Mr. SKELLY proposes in "The Dance of Life," at the Uptown and Washington St. Olympia.

DOROTHY SEBASTIAN
MISS SEBASTIAN aids the inimitable Miss Garbo in "The Single Standard," to be seen next week at Loew's Orpheum.

TOM BROWN AND PATRICIA DEERING
CHILDREN NEVER did better in the films than Master Brown and little Miss Deering in "The Lady Lies," now showing at the Metropolitan. The lassie seems to have scored one on the junior male, judging by their looks.

LOIS MORAN
COLLEGE STUFF rings the peppy keynote for "Words and Music" in which Miss Moran stars at the Keith Albee. Any co-ed would envy this actress for all her charms.

RUTH CHATTERTON, ULLRIC HAUPT
AT GRIPS are Miss Chatterton and Mr. Haupt during the progress of action in "Madame X," at Loew's State next week.

"Disraeli"

Upon completing the Vitaphone version of "Disraeli," George Arliss plans a vacation abroad, returning before Christmas to offer a new play. "Disraeli" follows Mr. Arliss' other Warner Bros. picture, "The Green Goddess."

LISTENING IN

By BERT BROCKBANK
Radio Editor

SIR HARRY LAUDER has been the butt for many jokers who think that thrift is carried to extremes by every Scotchman. Tomorrow night at 8 o'clock, over WBZ and the NBC system, the famous comedian is going to tell some Scotch jokes himself.

"What's your favorite Scotch story?" Sir Harry was asked a few days ago.

"It's the one I get paid for telling," was the instant reply. "But that's nae sae guid as the ones I'll be telling my radio audience Sunday night. The better the day the better the story."

Move to Avert Big Chicago Show Strike

Chicago, Aug. 31 (AP)—A last-minute conference between officers of the Musicians' unions and the Chicago Exhibitors Association was held today in an effort to forstall a walkout and retain the orchestras of motion picture and vaudeville theaters for Labor Day.

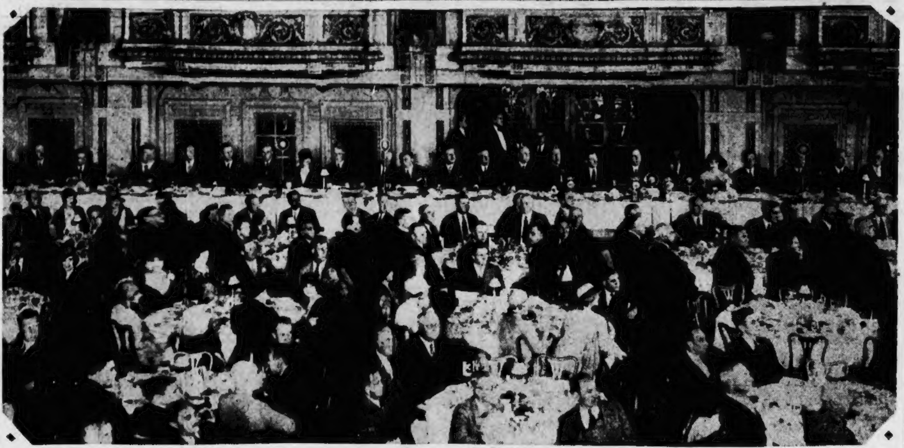
Bar Shoe Workers From Picketing

Judge Lummus in equity session of Superior court today enjoined the United Shoe Workers from picketing or interfering with the firms of Donn D. Sargent Co. and Vaughan Bros., Salem shoe manufacturers.

The concerns operate open shops and contended there is no strike. The union did not appear to oppose the injunctions.

German Genius Lauded by Brisbane at Luncheon to Dr. Eckener



Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander, officers of the Graf Zeppelin, and the Hearst correspondents on the Hearst-Zeppelin-round-world-flight were guests of honor at a luncheon tendered by the city of New York at the Hotel Astor. Dr. Eckener is at the head table on the right of Mayor Walker under the banquet hall balcony. Others nearby are Knute Eckener, Paul Block, Commander Rosendalh, Karl yon Wiegand, Hearst correspondent; Grover Whalen, and Lady Grace Drummond Hay, Hearst correspondent. The luncheon was featured by the address of Arthur Brisbane, editorial writer of the Hearst newspapers, in which Brisbane lauded the German genius which made the flight possible and pointed out the lesson which it contained for the United States. 'HOME MAKERS' ON THE AIR

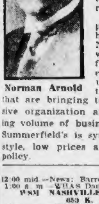
Inaugurating a new series of orchestral concerts for the radio audience of New England, the Summerfield "Home Makers" will make their debut through WEEI on Monday night at 6.05 o'clock.

The "Home Makers," a 12-piece orchestra, will present a whirlwind program of popular and classical selections, interspersed with vocal, selections by Norman Arnold, first tenor of the Knickerbocker Club, formerly of the Boston English Opera Company, and well-known for his perfect renditions.



Norman Arnold

During these programs the housewives of New England will be kept informed of the remarkable values in lifetime furniture that are bringing to this progressive organization an ever-increasing volume of business. The name Summerfield's is synonymous with style, low prices and progressive policy.

Big Leagues Plan To Banish Radio From Ball Parks

Major league clubs, having come to a realization of the damage done in keeping fans from their ball parks by the radio, will put the ban on broadcasting at their annual Winter meetings, 'tis whispered around. Although more or less discontent over conditions created by broadcasting has been voiced, it now appears that the American and National leagues are about to follow the example of the Southern League and let radio announcers tell bed-time stories to those who choose to listen to them, instead of watching a ball game. The Southern League magnates tossed the "mikes" out of the ball parks in Dixie early in the season.

Any decision, however, that major league club owners might reach to ban the radio would not affect broadcasting of World's Series games.

Walker Humbled by the Great Eckener

New York, Aug. 31 (INS)—Mayor Walker, at yesterday's luncheon in the Hotel Astor, honoring Dr. Hugo Eckener, circumnavigator of the world, said:

"Our visitors are so very welcome, not alone because this unprecedented and wonderful accomplishment is theirs, rather because of the character of the visit, not only the mind for which we have much profound admiration of the real commander of the Graf Zeppelin, but his great character, his intense modesty, his desire for self-effacement.

"How insignificant the most important of us must have looked to you up there in the clouds. As just a human being who has been reduced to the insignificant estate that he belongs to I am still interested in that splendid contribution that you have made, Dr. Eckener, not only to science and to civilization, but to good will amongst all the peoples of the earth.

"We have a very definite understanding of the purpose which impelled you to make this initial round-the-world voyage. It was not a prank. It was no caprice. It was a very definite intelligent intention to make a contribution to science and the improvement of things generally throughout the world.

"I would like to say a very complimentary word to our fellow citizen and publisher Mr. William Randolph Hearst. I know what it is to be kept in the air by Mr. Hearst for at least 24 hours. But now that he and you and I are down on earth and more or less well, it is indeed an occasion for celebration on the part of all of us.

"We want the people on the sidewalks of New York to know the Eckeners so they will know Germany better.

"And we want the people on the sidewalks of Berlin to know our Lindberghs better, and they will know America better."

SEES ZEPP AS 'PEACE DOVE'

New York, Aug. 31—Lady Drummond-Hay, speaking at the luncheon in honor of Dr. Eckener, said:

"My heart is so full that I hardly know how to guide my thoughts into coherency. Upon arrival from the Hearst-Zeppelin round-the-world trip I was for the first time in my life, so moved I just could not speak.

"The significance of the achievement is internationalism—the dynamic constructive power of international and individual co-operation. Dr. Eckener and Mr Hearst are both practical advocates of internationalism and co-operation in the cause of international peace.

"Representatives of 11 nations traveled around the world on the Zeppelin. The value of the resultant mutual friendship cannot be gauged in this generation. The courtesy, sportsmanlike good will and unstinted approval of every people in the world, the generous help of the American and Japanese navies, are likely to promote the cause of international understanding and sympathy to a far deeper and more lasting extent than any official peace-factory.

"Mr Hearst's generous support of the Zeppelin expedition as a sporting and scientific enterprise has won the admiration and gratitude of the whole world. Mr Hoover was among the first to articulate this recognition."

Eaker Hops Today for New Air Record

Mitchel Field, N. Y., Aug. 31 (INS)—Capt Ira Eaker, in his Boeing-Horne plane "Shuttle," accompanied by Lieut. Bernard Thompson, landed here at noon, having taken off from Cleveland at 8 a. m.

Capt. Eaker said he would probably take off this afternoon on his nonstop flight to shuttle between the Atlantic and Pacific Coasts in an effort to break all existing refueling, nonstop flights.

BRISBANE CITES U.S. LESSON IN ZEPP RECORD

Universal Service

New York, Aug. 31—Arthur Brisbane, famous editor and writer, speaking at the luncheon to Dr. Hugo Eckener at the Hotel Astor yesterday, said:

"Dr. Eckener, Mr. Mayor, ladies and gentlemen: We all enjoy congratulating the man who actually does a thing. Flying around the world and going around the world have been a part of human life and effort for centuries. Four hundred years ago Magellan made what was the first of the great trips, but did not come back from it. Fortunately, Dr. Eckener has returned, and will return many times, we hope.

"As Mr. Hoffman has said, the United States and all of its people, regardless of racial origin, greet this achievement as one of German genius. It is a great thing for this country to have as much as it has and now possesses of that German blood.

"It's extremely interesting for us, and many of us for the first time, myself included, to learn that the inventor of this airship came here in his youth, fought on the side of freedom and faith, in a war which resulted in keeping this nation united, and that he went back with the usual result of genius, applying what he had seen, and executing the idea of which he had dreamed and planned as a soldier in America.

"Germany, in aviation, appears to be leading the entire world, in spite of handicaps of manufacture, which need not be mentioned on such an occasion as this.

"While Dr. Eckener was going around the world, looking at our little earth from the sky, another German genius and initiative was perfecting his great Dornier plane, a heavier-than-air machine, with 12 engines and three decks, for traffic from Germany to South America, as was another young German, in this case a very young man of undoubted genius, whose plans are endorsed by great scientific authorities.

"This young German is building a ship that he hopes, and the scientists also hope and actually believe, will rise to high altitudes above the atmosphere that we breathe, into a lighter atmosphere, manufacture its own oxygen and fly at a rate that seems incredible. But, ladies and gentlemen, it is not at all incredible, but easy to believe, in fact, certain, when we [illegible] what genius is doing. That Dr. Eckener's trip of three days will [illegible] to one day and that the trip across the Atlantic will be a trip of half a day. That is certain to come.

"There was a lesson for Americans, beginning with the President of the United States, in Dr. Eckener's trip. He has given us a closeup of an invasion by Europe. There was a time when a man who set out across the Atlantic or Pacific sat down and made his will, said his prayers and started. I myself crossed the ocean when they used sails on ships because they did not like to rely upon steam. That was 50 years ago.

"Presently a man starting for Tokio or Paris, instead of making his will will order his dinner by telephone and eat it there the same day. But there is more than the close-up of invasion by Europe or than the pleasure of ordering your dinner in Paris, and coming back in time for your week-end here.

"The earth is so close together and continents almost touch. You need a good deal of human intelligence to prevent friction. The nations of Europe actually touch, and we know what has happened there.

"We have been separated by a great ocean on one side and a [illegible] ocean on the other, and we felt if people ever got across in great numbers they would find it difficult to feed their soldiers and take care of themselves after they got here."

Former Policeman Held as Fugitive

Springfield, Aug. 31 (INS)—Jeremiah J. Griffin, 50, of Aliquippa, Pa., said to be a former police officer of that town, was arrested here today as a fugitive from justice at the request of Pennsylvania police. Police said Griffin was wanted for the alleged theft of $1500 from his wife.

Wrecked Crew Is Saved in Pacific

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 3 (AP)—Coast Guard headquarters here has received a radio message from the Cutter Northland stating that the entire crew of the Schooner Elisie, wrecked off the Siberian coast early this month had been picked up on Little Diomede Island in the center of Bering Straits.

Big Chance for Zeramby

Reed's Hardest Fight

"I LOOK for one of the best lightweight bouts staged in Boston in years when Jake Zeramby of Lynn and Bruce Flowers get tangled up in a 10-round mill at a Boston Garden show at Braves Field on next Tuesday night," said Mr. Boston today. "The rival wallopers are so evenly matched that betting will probably be at even money at post time.

"This Zeramby kid has certainly made good. Only boxing for two years and just past his 19th birthday, he has licked Andre Routis, Sammy Fuller, Johnny Farr and a flock of lesser lights.

Jack Conway

"Zeramby has the sparkle and class which carries one to fistic fame and glory. The night at the Garden when he derailed Routis he gave a masterful exhibition of boxing and fighting. He out-boxed the champion for seven rounds and when he had him tired he stepped to bat and gave him a peach of a shellacking.

"Down along the North Shore they are hailing Zeramby as another Leonard. They figure the kid is on his way and that he will keep piling up victories.

"The Flowers fight is the major effort of Zeramby's career. It will be Jake's bow as a lightweight. He is tackling one of the front runners and will spot his rival a couple of pounds.

"Flowers has been a persistent challenger of Sammy Mandell, lightweight boss, but has been passed up because he's too good. Bruce once licked Honeyboy Finnegan at Mechanics Building. Later when Dick was handed the Duke over Flowers in the baseball orchard a lot of folks thought it was a home town verdict.

"Anyhow Jake gets his opportunity to bound to fame in the lightweight class on Tuesday night. And he is one of those kids who doesn't slam the door when Miss Opportunity goes calling. Routis, Fuller and the rest will tell you I'm right.

"GEORGE W. (JIMMY) BRITT, assistant collector of internal revenue, tells me that Martin Canole was his idea of a great lightweight. Britt declares Canole had skill, speed and a punch. The Fall River lightweight was almost as good with his mitts as Jimmie is with a mashie. Few know that Britt wrote sports in New Bedford 30 years ago and that he is as well versed in athletics as he is in the location of the traps at the Wollaston Golf Club.

"I MET Pal Reed, former middleweight star, mitting the gang at Toland's gym. Pal is director of boxing at New Hampshire State where he is also a student. In two years more Pal will wind up with a college degree and then can high hat Gene Tunney. Before going to New Hampshire State Reed completed several summer courses on physical culture at Harvard.

"PAL tells me that the late Tiger Flowers gave him his toughest fight. The Tiger was as fast as a shooting star and barraged with a million or so punches. Reed's greatest victory was scored over Tommy Loughran at Newark three years ago. He dropped Loughran with a left hook to the chin for a count of seven. Pal said the referee neglected to start his count until Loughran was down for at least 10 seconds.

"REED fought Johnny Wilson, Harry Greb, Jack Delaney, Mickey Walker and the rest of the front runners. He was managed at different times by George Carter, Larry Conley, Jack Bulger and Johnny Buckley. Nobody ever asked for their money back after any of Pal's fights. He always gave action.

"AL LACEY insists that with proper training Big Boy Rawson will become one of the stand out heavyweights. No denying Big Boy can hit. Just now he needs to develop his endurance and boxing. Larry is only 19

KEATING'S TALK CRITICISED

Toronto, Ont., Aug. 31 (AP)—Criticism of Edward F. Keating, New York, for his statement over the radio after finishing first in the men's 15-mile swimming marathon was made today by Martin Stern, secretary of the International Professional Swimmer's Association.

"Keating made an absolutely unfounded insinuation and should apologize publicly to the German swimmer," said Stern, intimating he would attempt to have revoked the honorary membership in the I. M. P. S. A., which was confered on Keating here last year.

Over the radio Keating said: "I hope Vierkoetter will now opologize for what he said about the Lake George swim."

"For the last two years," said Stearn, "Keating has clung to the impression, although he has repeatedly been assured otherwise, that Vierkoetter charged him (Keating) with being towed during the marathon swim at Lake George, N. Y., July 12, 1927, when Keating won the 31-mile race and a $5000 purse."

Dover, Eng., Aug. 31 (AP)—Miss Ivy Hawke, British swimmer who swam the English Channel last year in 19 hours and 16 minutes, starting from the French coast, today failed in an attempt to swim the channel from Dover to the French coast.

Miss Hawke was forced to abandon her attempt after 18 hours in the water. She swam within three miles of the French coast when she had to give up from exhaustion.

Twi League Title at Stake on Monday

The playoff series for the Twilight League championship of the 1929 season will begin on Labor Day with either Roslindale or Salem opposing Quincy, first-half champions, at Fore River field, Quincy.

The game will be called at 3 o'clock and the umpires will be: Mulligan at home plate, McCarthy at first base and Kelley at third.

Woodsies in Clash With Providence

By BILL McAULEY

THE league-leading Providence Goldbugs with five straight victories in as many starts will provide the opposition for the Woodsies in an American Soccer League contest at Huntington Field, Brookline today.

The Goldbugs will come here under the management of Bill Patterson for the first time since the latter took over the position left open by the resignation of Sam Fletcher.

Patterson plays center for the Rhode Islanders, and his ability on the field hasn't been affected by his managerial duties, for he has been responsible for most of the goals registered by the team during its triumphant streak.

Confronted by a situation where several of last year's stars were lost to the club through departures to Scotland and holdouts, the former New Bedford star got busy and signed several youngsters who played in the Rhode Island league last year, and his judgment was excellent if records mean anything.

Three of these youngsters will be seen against the Woodsies today, Groce, Dick and Simone being slated to start and there is more than a possibility that a couple more may get into the game before it is over.

The few veterans left have blended well with the youngsters and Rhode Island fans are predicting that the Goldbugs are on their way to give Providence their first pennant.

The kickoff is slated for 3 p. m., and Archie Hart will be the referee in charge with Jimmy Johnstone and Thomson Ritchie assisting him on the lines.

Nearly 100 to Play for Tennis Title

New York, Aug. 31—With France unrepresented by any of its first rate players for the first time since 1922, entries have closed for the 48th national men's singles tennis championships to be contested at Forest Hills, September 9 to 14.

The draw will be made here Tuesday.

Thirty of the 34 players who were given a national ranking last season are among the entrants. Representatives of Japan, England, Cuba and Greece are numbered among the entries.

Nearly 100 entry applications were received but those of Rene Lacoste, Henri Cochet, Jean Borotra or Jacques Brugnon were not among them.

Al Mello Ready to Stage Comeback

Bobby Goldman, manager of Al Mello, rises to announce that Billy Murphy, Johnny Indrisano, Larry Brignolia and Tony Sh and other ambitious young men who have been claiming the New England welterweight championship during the absence of Al Mello from the ring will have to defeat Mello if they wish the title.

"Some of these fighters are trying to grab a title in the easiest known way, by claiming it," said Goldman. "Mello won the title by knocking out Eddie Shevlin. He has never been defeated by a New England welterweight, and, contrary to reports, positively will not desert the welterweight for the middleweight ranks.

"Mello will be ready to defend his title in six weeks against all comers."

Benny Frey Goes Up to Cincinnati Reds

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 31 (AP)—Benny Frey, ace of Nashville's hurling staff, has been sold to Cincinnati for $14,000, Jack Whaley, president of the club, announced today.

LETOURNIER SEEKS RECORD

Al Letournier will go out to break his own one-hour record of 45 miles, 3½ laps at the Revere cycle track tonight.

The French flier is confident of doing at least 48 miles and, with such a field as George Zucchetti to push him, the chances of his attaining a new mark are very favorable. Charlie Winters and Victor Rausch complete an imposing group.

The 10-mile junior motor-paced race will have Tony Bernard, Bruno Larus, Al Keith, Joe McGann and Tony Insana rattling the boards. Keith is the favorite but that means very little in a motor-paced race.

Mosquito K. O.'s Matchmaker Mack

Eddie Mack, matchmaker of the Boston Garden, today entered Charlesgate Hospital to have his right hand operated upon for blood poisoning. He was in the service of Dr. John Cunningham, noted surgeon.

Mack was bitten by a mosquito at Onset early in the week. He scratched the bite and infection set in. Dr. Cunningham stated it will be necessary for Mack to remain in the hospital for two or three days. The surgeon did not look for any complications.

Only 11 2-Year-Olds in Hopeful Today

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 31—Eleven two-year-olds, the smallest field in years, were named today to go to the post in the $70,000 Hopeful, culminating the 30-day meeting.

Jack Sharkey Will Write for American Readers

JACK SHARKEY, Boston's contender for the heavyweight ring title, will cover the next championship bout for the Boston Evening American.

The Newton Squire will be a principal in that bout. He will box Tommy Loughran, retired light heavy champ on September 26 in New York. The winner will be heavyweight champion of the world.

Sharkey is one of the smartest big fighters the game has known. He has planned his own ring campaigns, and made himself a rich man. He will personally conduct his training for this bout.

And he will write the details for Boston Evening American readers.

Three times a week Sharkey will tell how he will lick Loughran, and why he is sure he will be the next champ.

His articles start Tuesday, September 3. DON T MISS THEM.

Pick Doeg and Lott to Win Net Title

By JOHN GILLOOLY

ONE of the most memorable chapters in Boston tennis history will be closed at the Longwood Cricket Club, Chestnut Hill, today, when three national doubles championships are played.

First and foremost comes the main event of the week, the fight for the men's national doubles crown. John Doeg and George Lott tackle Berkeley Bell and Lewis White in this one. Doeg and Lott are favored to win.

John Gillooly

After it's over Lott will go in, change into fresh attire and proceed to do his best to send the mixed doubles title across the water to England. He's paired with Betty Nuthall, the "Helen Wills" of John Bull's dominion, and the team was seeded as a foreign combination. Herbert Austin and Mrs. B. C. Covell will give England a full claim to our mixed doubles throne if they can defeat the Lott-Nuthall combination. Which, by the way, is not likely.

About dinner time the Bassfords, H. H. and H. H., Jr., will try to keep up with the Joneses, J. D. E. and Arnold, in the final match of the National Father and Son Doubles tournament.

These three matches will be played in the Sheafe Memorial Bowl and will get under way at 2:30. With favorable weather one of Boston's biggest tennis galleries will be on hand, not to cheer or jeer, but to take their thrills in tight-mouthed silence. Which is one of the main draw backs in this polite pastime.

Lott will probably be a double winner today. He's the keystone in both combinations.

But he has plenty of support on both teams. If George picks his own partners he certainly knows his business. He couldn't want a finer partner in the doubles than John Doeg, who is one of the game's best volleyers. And Miss Nuthall, who made Miss Helen Wills shiver recently when she pushed her into two 8—6 games, is no mean mixed doubles player.

Lott won the doubles title a year ago with John Hennessey as a partner while Helen Willis and J. B. Hawkes of Australia won the mixed doubles.

At the very best America will have to be content with a split on the mixed doubles situation again this summer as our boys and girls can't seem to muster a suitable team. The Jones family won the Father and Son honors last year and there'll probably be more celebrating in their home this p. m. They should win from the Bassfords.

A HOT FIGHT ROUNDING TURN

Tribe Must Win or Remain in Cellar

THE Braves must take the final game of the series from the Phils this afternoon or else see themselves securely embedded in the cellar.

A win will give the locals only one victory out of three starts with the only lowly Philadelphians.

Chuck Klein, home run leader of National League, is again on the trail of Babe Ruth and the local fans may expect to see Chuck swing like the proverbial gate in an effort to annex one or two more of those four ply blows. Chuck did his bit in yesterday's melee.

The Philadelphian was on the sick list for awhile and saw his National League contenders forge almost even with him. The Batterlng Bambino, Babe Ruth, is now the leader of the two leagues but is not so far to the fore that he can afford to forget the presence of the slugging Hoosier from Bill Baker's team.

A poor first inning and a poorer final frame were the direct causes of yesterday's defeat of the locals.

Fresco Thompson opened well enough from a Boston point of view. He lined out to Lance Richbourg. Bernie Friberg singled and went to third when Lefty O'Doul followed suit.

Then Mr. Klein entered the picture and hammered one of Lefty Brandt's shoots into the right field bleachers for a beautiful home run. Two more singles followed and Mr. Brandt went to the club house for a shower.

Tommy Thevenow greeted Ben Cantwell with a spanking single and another run was across.

The score was 6 to 5 in favor of the Phils in the ninth but again the Braves blew to the skies. When the commotion had finally died down, three more Philly runs had crossed the plate. The Braves couldn't do a thing in their half of the final frame.

Somerville Cubs Out for 54th Win

The fast-travelling Somerville Cubs, with a record of 53 victories thus far this season, will try for their 54th win this afternoon at Lincoln Park, Somerville, when they cross bats with the well known Brockton All-Stars, champions of Brockton and vicinity.

Against the Shoe City batters, it is expected that Manager Bill Flynn of the Cubs will use Webber Knox on the mound. Knox formerly was an all-scholastic twirler at Medford high. Frank "Tiger" Donovan will catch Knox' shoots.

The game will start promptly at 3 p. m.

Kynaston Gains Win on Default

Pittsfield, Aug. 31—Percy Kynaston of New York who has won the Country Club of Pittsfield annual tennis tournament several times and has two legs on the cup which is up for competition at present, was hard pressed by Harold Hemenway of Pittsfield, city champion in the first round of the annual tourney this afternoon.

Hemenway won, 6—2. It was too dark to finish the match and, as Hemenway would be unable to play today, he defaulted to Percy.

Sonnenberg Again Defeats Malcewicz

Tulsa, Okla., Aug. 31 (AP)—Gus Sonnenberg, heavyweight wrestling champion, defeated Joe Malcewicz, Utica, N. Y., by taking two straight falls here last night.

Shortly after the start of the match, Referee Ted Tonneman disqualified Malcewicz for using his knee in defense against the champion's flying tackle. The city athletic commission, however, overruled the official and made the men wrestle it out.

"Keep Head Still," Says Golf Champ

By HORTON SMITH

U. S. North and South, and French Professional Champion

THE golf swing as made by the professional is so simply and accurately executed that ordinary spectators who are more intent on observing where the ball goes, rather than the methods of the strikers, are apt to assume that the correct swing is quite a simple affair and that it is accomplished more or less mechanically.

This assumption while quite excusable is none the less inaccurate.

For proof of this contention one has only to hear the despairing remarks of beginners who, having followed a professional exhibition over their home course, and having come to the conclusion that everything is so easy have gone out on the following day to emulate what they have seen the day previously.

They are lulled into the belief that they can reproduce the beautiful rhythmic swing of the "professors," and thereby accomplish pars and birdies with ease.

ALMOST invariably a dreadful disillusionment awaits these beginners. They go out full of hope and confidence, only to return full of despair and disillusionment.

Much to their astonishment they have topped, pulled, sliced and socketted their shots in just the same old way as before; they have committed just the same common faults that they have been doing for months and months.

This and my next article are written with the object of grappling with some of these faults, in the hope that some light may be thrown on their cause and eradication.

LET me take the faults in the order I have already given them above. First, let me deal with topped shots. What is the real cause of topping? In 90 cases out of 100 a topped tee shot is the result of not keeping the head still.

I am bold enough to submit that if the head be kept still it is almost impossible, given a reasonable lie, to top; but let the head "come away" ever so triflingly and topping becomes the easiest of feats.

Nearly every ... shot is the outcome, either directly or indirectly, of head movement. This is a truth which the beginner cannot too strongly realize.

If the head "lifts" the body, arms and club-head "lift" as well. The error may be only ...lingly small but it is sufficient to cause the ball to return just incorrectly enough to spoil the shot.

WHEN you come to figure it out there is not much room for error. Place the face of your driver against the ball, and see for yourself; the base of your swing has only to be held an inch too high to be sufficient to bring about a most erratic foozle.

"Why is the still head so important?" you may ask. The still head is all important because it is, or should be, the fixed center round which everything else revolves. Let this fixed center stray from its original position and it takes everything else with it. I hope my readers will forgive my seeming repetition of this point, but I cannot emphasize it too strongly.

SET MARKS IN GRAND CIRCUIT

Syracuse, N. Y., Aug. 31—With ideal weather to help, the final day's racing of the Grand Circuit meeting produced some notable events in world record time, the day being excellent for fast time and the track especially fast for either trotters or pacers.

The sensation of the day was the struggle in the 2:05 trot between Hazleton 2:00¾ and Dewey McKinney 2:02½, both members of the Good Time stable, although under different ownership, the estate of the late Barton Pardee owning Hazleton, and Claude B. Luddington of Rochester, N. Y., the owner of Dewey McKinney.

They fought it out to the wire, with Dewey McKinney the best by two yards in 2:01¾, the fastest trotting heat of the year and a new record for the Lord Dewey trotter, which holds the world record for trotters in a race over a half-mile track, 2:04¼.

The three heats lowered all previous records for three heats by a trotter, either of divided heats and regardless of sex of the maker.

The record also lowered Dewey McKinney's former record of 2:02½ and making Hazleton as the champion race trotter of this, as well as other years.

Cities Enter Teams in Dilboy Show

The city of Worcester will be represented by a special team of boxers, comprising some of the best boys in that city, in the Dilboy Post, amateur boxing tournament, being held Wednesday night, September 4, at Dilboy Field, Somerville.

Among this group will be at least one heavyweight, who has been consistently winning a... nd the western part of the State.

Lowell and Lawrence will also be represented by worthy boxers. Several boxers have come down from New Hampshire.

Salem and Roslindale Meet in Decisive Twi Tilt Today

VICTORY FOR WITCH CITY MEANS FLAG

By DICK McSWEENEY

THE second half race in the Twilight League promises to end in whirlwind fashion today when Salem, now leading the league, and Roslindale, half a game from the top, bitter rivals for the right to enter the championship playoff series, oppose each other at Salem. If Salem wins, it will cop the second half flag and play Quincy for the season's title.

The surprising Quincy team will entertain South Boston, and the fans will be just as interested in this tussle as the Roslindale-Salem melee.

When Roslindale goes to Salem today the hopes of the team will be pinned on the mound work of John Dixon. Burte will toe the hill for Salem.

Salem and Roslindale have made a brilliant fight to capture second half honors, and the culmination of their rivalry this afternoon should be well worth seeing.

Roslindale is a team which is especially strong as regards hitting, and the club's mound staff is one of the best in the after-supper circuit.

Salem had to struggle along with only two capable heavers, Lorne Johnson and Lou Page, but the addition of Loftus, Wineapple and Burte, has done much to keep the outfit in the second half race.

Loftus gained notice by his brilliant work against South Boston on Thursday, when he shut out the hard-hitting Southie gang without a hit.

In case it is necessary for Salem to play South Boston today after having played Roslindale, it is likely that Loftus will be sent against South Boston for the second time this week.

South Boston will start Smith on the mound. But he will be idle if the Witch City outfit is successful in taking the measure of Roslindale.

Dorchester will have an opportunity to play the role of benefactor today by beating Quincy.

Jim Shea will twirl for the visiting Dorchester outfit, while Norman Sims will breeze them over for the Granite City nine

FLOWERS SURE OF K. O. VICTORY

Anticipating a knockout victory Bruce Flowers, New Rochelle lightweight, regarded as the outstanding contender for the crown now worn by Champion Sammy Mandell, will arrive in the Hub late today for his match with Jake Zeramby, Lynn schoolboy, in the feature bout to be staged at Braves Field next Tuesday night, under the direction of the Boston Garden.

Flowers, who has been training in New York, insists that he will crush Zeramby's long winning streak, and at the same time he feels confident that he'll put the quietus on the Lynn boy within a few rounds. And while Flowers ring experience, his crushing right hand punch and his all round ring brilliance is expected to send him into the ring the favorite in this match, nevertheless Zeramby will be supported by 2500 Lynn fans who insist that their favorite is destined to wear a championship crown before many months.

The Ebony Phantom is planning two hard training sessions here tomorrow and Monday, and it is expected that he will weigh about 134½ pounds for the bout. Zeramby it is expected, will weigh no more than 133 pounds, his natural fighting weight, which will permit him to enter the ring with his complete strength.

Al Lacey, who has conducted Zeramby's training for all his important ring skirmishes, gave it as his opinion that the Lynn boy will be able to punch harder than ever at his natural weight, and Lacey is eagerly looking forward to his charge scoring another upset.

In spite of the fact that Flowers comes to the Hub directly upon the heels of his spectacular victory over Ray Miller in Philadelphia, and while he has knocked out four opponents in his last six bouts, Zeramby still feels confident of winning this bout.

IN THE BEGINNING

By Sam Carrick

ROWING No. 9

The First International College Race

OXFORD was the victor in the first international college race, rowed on the Thames, England, August 27, 1869. The event was brought about as the result of a challenge sent by the Harvard crew as the champion of America. A like defi was sent to the University of Cambridge, England, but no match was made in the latter instance. Harvard was challenged by the London Rowing Club, but declined the match on the ground that match racing with club crews was contrary to its policy.

In accepting the challenge, Oxford stipulated that the race was to be rowed by four-oared crews, without coxswain, but in organizing the Harvard crew to be sent abroad, a coxswain was chosen. The makeup of the Harvard crew was as follows: Bow, J. S. Fay, No. 3, F. O. Lyman; No. 2, W. H. Simmons; stroke, A. P. Loring (captain), and coxswain, A. Burnham. Oxford accepted the coxswain and constituted the crew as follows: Bow, F. Willan; No. 3, J. C. Tinne; No. 2, A. C. Yarborough; stroke, S. D. Derbyshire, and coxswain, J. H. Hall. The average weight of the Oxford oarsmen was 171 pounds, while the Harvard men scaled 10 pounds less per man. All of the Harvard oarsmen were undergraduates, except Fay, who was a Law school student, while the Oxford crew was drawn from five different colleges.

Aside from the race with Yale on Lake Quinsigamond, June 23, which was won by Harvard, the Crimson oarsmen engaged in three contests, two on the Charles and one on the Mystic, before going to England that year. In the first of these matches, rowed on the Charles, June 15, Harvard was beaten by the crew of the George Roahr (professional), according to Samuel Crowther in his account of American rowing, but the H. Book of Harvard Athletics, published in 1922, states Harvard was declared winner on a foul. The times in this race, as given in the H. Book are Harvard, 21m., 28s.; George Roahr, 21m., 12s. In the two subsequent races, on the Mystic, June 15, and on the Charles, July 5, Harvard was the unquestioned victor. The races on the Charles were for three miles each; that on the Mystic, four miles.

The Harvard crew arrived in England on July 20 and in work preparatory to the race with Oxford used the quarters of the London Rowing Club.

An immense throng gathered on the banks of the Thames on the day of the race (one estimate putting the number as high as 750,000) which had aroused the keenest interest in England.

Harvard, rowing 46 against Oxford's 42, jumped into the lead. Soon two boat lengths separated the rivals. At the halfway mark Harvard was well in the lead, but was beginning to weaken. Superior condition told and the Oxford crew had made up the distance before the three-quarter mark was reached. Oxford won in 22m. 41s. Harvard finishing in a fagged out condition a length and a half to the rear.

Local Boxers to Meet at Portland

Portland, Me., Aug. 31—Larry Brignolia, the Cambridge welterweight, and Tommy Daley of Lynn have been signed by Chick Hayes to meet in this city next Tuesday night.

The boys are listed to go over the 12-round journey. Both are in perfect trim as they have recently been training

SCOTCH GAMES ON MONDAY

Sportlovers are looking forward with interest to the annual Scottish Clans' games, to be held in Caledonian Grove, West Roxbury, Labor Day.

One of the leading attractions will be the O. S. C. mile for a leg on the handsome trophy donated by Col. Walter Scott, Past Royal Chief of the Order of Scottish Clans.

Charley Sansone and Julius Gilbert, both of the B. A. A., have a single leg apiece on the cup and each hopes to repeat in Monday's meet.

Bill Benedict and Walter Bennett of the Dorchester club also have eyes on the trophy. Other entrants in this race include: Arthur Barr, Vincent Kelley, Vincent Signore, J. McDonough, M. Portanova and Fred Milmore.

Two New England A. A. A. U. junior champions will compete against Ross MacDonald in the shot put event.

They are Lillian Dennen of the Medford Girls' A. C. and Mae Magill of the Boston Swimming Association. Other entrants are Alice Morris, New England baseball throwing champion and Lillian Blakeny.

Some interesting competition is expected in the running high jump contest in which Sylvia Brennan of the Brockton Girls' A. C. and Helen Hammersley of the Boston Swimming Association, close rivals in the recent meet held at Lynn, will be opponents.

Other contenders in this event will be Enes Larson, Alice Morris, Lillian Steifax, Roberta Winton, Harriet Brand, Mae Magill, Mabel Morrissey, Helen Phillips and Virginia Blomerth.

The 440-yard relay for girls ought to be closely contested with teams representing the Brockton Girls' A. C., Employers' Liability Assurance Corporation, Inc., Medford Girls' A. C., and Boston Swimming Association, as rivals.

'Twixt Tee and Cup

By BILL GRIMES

NOW the U. S. G. A., has put the finger of Johnny Dawson of Chicago. Because Dawson is connected with A. G. Spaulding and Sons, he has been declared ineligible for amateur golf. At least that is the story making the rounds. However there is reason to believe that because he is a product of the public links, he just does not belong.

Although few believe that the U. S. G. A. would have stopped Dawson had he insisted upon a show down, he would have carried a mental hazard into the championship similar to that which ruined George Voigt at Minnikada two years ago, against whom charges were hinted prior to the 1927 classic.

After almost a year's absence from competitive golf, Mrs. George W. Roope turned in an 84 to win the low gross of the women's South Shore championship yesterday.

Playing the South Shore Country Club for the first time yesterday, Tommie Quinn, who will oppose Stanley Neptune in an exhibition match tomorrow afternoon at the West Hingham club, shot an 88. He had just three bad holes, the worst of which was the 9th where he got off to a bad start and wound up with an 8.

Henry G. Lapham is carrying on from the M. G. A. in the controversy with the U. S. G. A. over paying expenses for Inter-State and [illegible] cup teams. In Lapham the M. G. A. has a representative who has no axe to grind and one who will speak his thoughts without fear. And he will speak plenty, once he gets warmed up.

The N. E. P. G. O. has selected the Oak Hill Country Club at Fitchburg for its championship, which will also be the qualifying rounds for the P. G. A. Oak Hill is a short course but a very exacting one. It was also announced after yesterday's meeting that the amateur-pro championship would be played at Kernwood, which is one of the very topnotch courses in this country.

Although it cost Dr. Henry Cohen money, he was as elated over the hole in one scored by Edward Goldberg, the sheep skin coat king, as though he had performed the feat himself. Goldberg holed out from the sixth tee at Pine Brook Valley for his first tee to cup stroke.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

"Golf's Greatest Teacher"

STAND CLOSER TO THE BALL

The wood club swing we have discussed so far has been, though I have not mentioned it heretofore because I didn't want you to get to thinking of different types of swing, the full upright. This is the best and most reliable of all swings. Now with the irons you use the same swinging principles with these changes. With each club you stand a bit closer to the ball as the shaft length is shorter. That is, stand up closer with a mashie than you would with a midiron and still closer with the pitching clubs. With mashie niblick or niblick you should be almost directly over the ball. Never stand far away, as with the midiron when using the shorter clubs. Standing up closer to the ball makes your swing still more upright in each case, but the closer position makes that automatic so you needn't think of that part of it. Then we have, too, the three-quarter swing, the half swing, the quarter swing and the run up stroke. Entering into these changes is the open stance. The longest swing you ever make with an iron is a three-quarter swing, which is used with the longer irons. This obviously is about three fourths of the back swing you would use with your woods.

N. E. STANDINGS UNCHANGED

By CHARLES HOFFMAN

After winning 10 straight games on their own ball park, the Portland club was finally defeated by Lynn.

Mullin started on the mound for the losers, and Lynn took a hiking to his offerings, and he was relieved by Reynolds, who beat the champs the day before.

The latter held the winners to one hit the rest of the game.

Bernie McHugh, Portland third sacker, got his second home run in two days at the expense of Speaz, the Lynn twirler.

The standing remained the same in the New England race, as the Manchester Blue Sox also won their game.

Bowman and Mishkin, infielders of the Blue Sox, both got three hits out of four trips to the plate.

[illegible] hit a home run and a single in three times at bat.

Every man on the Twins ball club got at least one hit with the exception of O'Brien the catcher.

Four games are on the schedule for today. Nashua goes to Portland, Lynn plays at Lewiston, Gloucester journeys to Manchester and Brockton and New Bedford clash in the latter city.

Zarkow of Gloucester and Althausen of New Bedford engaged in a pitcher's battle, the game going to a scoreless tie in seven innings. The former allowed but two hits, and the Whalers' twirler gave five scattered bingles.

Tessier, Gloucester catcher, hit a triple, but his teammates left him stranded there.

The change of cities has helped the Gloucester team very much, as they have been playing very good baseball since they went to the latter city.

One more week and the curtain will ring down on another season of the New England League.

"LITTLE CAESAR"

The Thrilling, Vivid STORY OF A RACKETEER

by W.R.BURNET

Tony Goes Home Late and Is Warned by His Mother of His 'Bum' Friends

What Has Happened Before

In the backroom of his "Club Palermo," Chicago gangland headquarters, fat and swarthy Sam Vettori, gangster chief, outlines the plan for a hold-up of the Casa Alvarado, high-class night club. Tony Passa, Otero the Greek, Joe Massara, and Rico, Sam's lieutenant, are each assigned parts to carry out. Sam, who does not actively participate, warns Rico there is to be no shooting. The gangsters depart. Scabby, the informer, tells Sam all is set, but warns against gunplay. Otero, visiting his girl, "Seal Skin," hears her rant about the danger of following Rico.

Now Go On With the Story

CHAPTER 3

It was nearly 2 o'clock when Tony left his sweetie. A lake wind was blowing hard and the snow fell heavily past the street lights. Tony muffled himself in his overcoat and pulled his cap low. He felt tired and disgusted.

At the corner near his home he turned into Sicily Pete's restaurant. Three men were playing cards at a table in the back. Up front a mechanical piano ground out a popular ballad.

"Hello, Tony, how's the boy?" said Pete.

"Not so good," said Tony.

"You ain't looking any too good, Tony," said Pete.

Tony ran his hands over his face and stared at his image in the mirror behind the counter. Pale; circles under his eyes.

"Well, I guess I'll live," said Tony.

Pete smacked the counter with both hands.

"Sure you'll live. You be O. K. tomorrow morning. I know, Tony, my boy."

"Sure you know," said Tony, sarcastically.

"Never you mind. All right, Tony, what'll you have?"

Tony couldn't decide. Pete went to wait on one of the card players. The mechanical piano finished the air on a discord. Tony went over and put a nickel in the slot.

The mechanical piano began to play O Sole Mio.

"I'll take a combination," said Tony, "and a cup of Java."

"O. K.," said Pete; "I got two combinations, one to go and three on the Java."

"How's business, Pete?" asked Tony.

"Oh, what you call so-so. Not good, not bad. I never get rich here."

"Why don't you put in a line of bottled goods?" said Tony, smiling.

Pete raised both hands over his head and brought them down hard on the counter.

"None of that for Sicily Pete. Oh no. Pete's too smart for that. If the bulls don't get you, why, some of them gangsters do. I know. One say, you buy from me; the other say, no, you buy from me. All the same. No matter who you buy from, bango!"

"Tony," said Pete, putting his head on one side, "you know you look like your old man. Other day when you was in here I say to the missus, look, ain't he just like his old man? Well, well. That is good. A boy should look like his old man. That is a good sign.

"Knew the old man pretty well, didn't you, Pete?" said Tony, finishing his coffee.

"Yes, pretty well. When he was a young fellow he was like you. Full of pep and always after the girls. But I don't know, your mama she got hold of him, then he wasn't like he used to be. He wasn't like the same fellow. Pretty soon he died."

Tony laughed.

"Hard on the old lady, ain't you?"

"No," said Pete, an expression of acute misery on his face, "you don't get me, Tony. I mean he got to be a good fellow, like me. Work, work, that's all he knew. Well, work is a good thing. It keeps you out of trouble, but I don't know. . . ."

Pete wiped the sweat from his forehead and meditated. Tony flipped him a 50-cent piece. The mechanical piano stopped on a prolonged, slurred discord.

"Well, I guess I'll hit for home," said Tony, "so long, Pete."

"WHY HERE? BROKE?"

"Shut up!" said Joe to Olga and walked out of the room.

The wind struck Tony in the face as he left the restaurant. The streets were white and silent. Tony walked home slowly, tired and disgusted.

As he entered the flat he saw a dim light in the front room. He tried to sneak into his bedroom, but his mother heard him. She rose from her chair, a monstrous silhouette against the dim front room light.

"A fine time for you to come in, Antonio," she said. "Have you been out again with them good-for-nothing loafers?"

"Yes," said Tony, in a bad temper.

"So . . . !" said his mother, "you don't even lie any more. Well, well! You are doing fine. Pretty soon you won't come home at all, you bum."

"You said a mouthful," said Tony.

"Sure, you won't listen to your mother. Some day you'll remember what I told you. You loaf with crooks and bums long enough, you'll see what will happen."

His mother stood in the middle of the room for a minute, then she put out the light and sat in the dark, crying.

"Don't go on a bat with that two-bits," he said.

"No, sir," said the check-girl. She watched him walk across the long dance-floor, pick his way among the crowded tables, bowing from time to time to one he had jostled, and disappear through the employes' door at the back. Then she put checks on his coat and hat and hung them up.

"What a hot-looking man," she said. "I don't see how that little hunky got him."

Olga Stassoff was just putting the finishing touches to her make-up. Joe came in softly and stood watching her. She began to sing.

"If you're singing for me," said Joe, "you can stop any time."

Olga turned around

"Well, what are you doing here? Broke?"

"Shut up," said Joe

Then he turned to walk out.

"Ain't that a fine way to say hello to a guy?" he said. "Why, you must think you got me roped and hog-tied."

"I was just kidding, Joe," said Olga, looking at him, "honest I didn't mean it. I was just kidding."

"Well, get this," said Joe, returning. "I'm damn sick of that line. What do you take me for? That goes big with some of your swell boy friends who've got ugly wives and ain't any too particular, but me! I don't take that kind of talk from nobody."

Olga put her arms around him, but he pushed her away.

"Listen, Joe," she said, "I got good news for you, so get out of your fighting clothes and come to earth. Can't you take a little kidding?"

Joe took out his gold cigarette case and selected a cigarette. He always smoked the best, when Olga had plenty of money, and he usually carried three or four different brands. With a flourish he put away his case, then, very preoccupied, he placed the selected cigarette on the back of his left hand and, with a slight tap of his right hand, flipped it into his mouth. Olga laughed.

"Now," said Joe, "spill the good news."

"Have you told him yet, Olga?" he asked.

Joe gave the manager a most ingratiating smile.

"What's the big talk, Mr. DeVoss? Am I missing something?"

"You sure are," said DeVoss. "The Stranskys broke their contract and I'm putting you in their place."

Joe leapt into the air and executed a twinkle. Olga burst out laughing.

"Well," said Joe, "[illegible] much?"

"One hundred to start, [illegible] then we'll see."

"Well," said Joe, "I can't buy no limousines with that, but I'll take it."

Joe and DeVoss shook hands.

"Now," said the manager, "there's a girl out here who's just dying to dance with you, Joe."

Joe shook his head.

"No, I don't like that stuff. They always think they got to hand you something. What the hell! I don't want no dame handing me nothing."

Olga put her hand over her mouth to stifle a laugh.

"Don't worry about that, Joe," said DeVoss, "she's already asked me about that and I told her you'd be insulted so she gave me a ten." DeVoss took a crumpled bill out of his pocket and handed it to Joe. "There, now get this. She's an up and up girl and she means lots of business to this place. Her old man's got a couple of million bucks and she's the real thing. All right, Joe?"

"Sure, sure," said Joe, "always willing to oblige."

DeVoss went through the swinging doors and stood waiting for Joe on the other side. Olga took Joe by the arm.

"Listen," she said, "none of your funny business now. Just do your stuff and leave it at that. I'm on to these society women. I know what they want."

Joe leapt into the air and executed another twinkle.

"Alley up!" he cried, "don't you trust me, baby?"

Olga put her hands on her hips and began to laugh. How could you be sore at a guy like that?

Easy

by BEATRICE BURTON

Author of "The HOLLYWOOD GIRL"

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Ann Marie Macy, though young and pretty, is the "easy mark" of her motherless family. She is forever waiting on her more modern, flapperish sisters, Alice and Jeanie, and lending them her clothes and trinkets to aid in their conquest of the boy friends. The money she earns by painting cards for her father's bookstore partly goes in payment of her brother, Howard's, debts. She is hoping to earn enough to pursue her art course. When Neal Forsythe arrives to visit the wealthy Lawlers Ann Marie quickly loses her heart to him in spite of her disillusionment when she finds him embracing Leota Ingram, the town's bad girl. Her dream of an art course is rudely shattered when Howard, her brother, tells her he is in trouble with Leota and asks Ann Marie to intervene. Leota unexpectedly appears at the Macy home as Florence and John Lawler call.

ANN Marie carefully closed the door of the front parlor so that Leota would not be able to see Florence Lawler and Howdy if she came into the house.

Then she opened the front door to her.

On the floor of the porch, at Leota's feet, were two bags and a cheap oil-cloth hat box.

As Ann Marie looked at them a feeling of sudden and enormous relief came swelling up into her heart . . . it almost looked as if Leota were getting ready to leave town!

"Going away, Leota?" she blurted out hopefully.

"That all depends," she said slowly, "on your brother. I want to see him."

Some of the hope in Ann Marie's heart died . . . Perhaps Leota had come to the house to persuade Howdy to run away with her and be married! To threaten him into doing what she wanted him to do—

But she kept her fear out of her voice and manner when she answered.

"Won't you come in?" she asked pleasantly. "I'll call Howdy."

At the far end of it, under the stair-case, was the tiny room that Jeanie used for a sewing-room. The door stood open.

"Won't you come in here and sit down?" she asked, still smiling as naturally as she could. "Howdy is talking to a—a caller in the parlor but I'll get him."

She turned as if she were going out of the little room. But she had no intention of letting Leota see Howard if she could prevent it.

She had always realized that he was weak; since that morning she had known that he had once been in love with Leota. Perhaps he still was, she figured . . . And it would be just like him to give up everything all at once and run away with this worthless girl!

"Leota," she said, stopping with her hand on the door-knob, "do you mind if I ask you something that probably isn't any of my business?"

Leota looked at her dully for a minute. "Naw. Go ahead," she said finally.

"Do you need some money? Is that why you want to see Howdy?"

Leota nodded. "Yes, and he's got to give it to me!—I been thinking things out, and I don't want to marry him if he's off me like I think he is."

It seemed impossible that so coarse and common a voice could come from between those perfect Cupids bow lips of hers.

"But I ain't going to stay here no more, now that this story about his giving me the run-around is out," she went on sullenly. "So I'm going to get out. I hate this little one-horse burg, anyhow, and I know a man in New Yorkk who says he can get me work has an artist's model. But I got to have some money to take me there and keep me for a while. See!"

Leota's beautifully arched eyebrows went up into her shining hair. "Oh, a couple of hundred will do me," she said airily.

Two hundred dollars!—Ann Marie's heart sank. She had only about half as much as that in her little savings account at the bank.

"Wait a minute," she said, and went out, closing the door carefully behind her.

Jeanie and Alice were coming down the stairs, dressed within an inch of their lives and both of them fragrant with Ann Marie's French perfume.

"Listen, you two!" she said to them in a tense little voice that was not much more than a whisper. "Get Florence Lawler out to that car as quickly as you can!—Don't ask me questions, but just do it!"

Then she flung open the door of the parlor.

"Howdy, come here a minute," she called to him. "Come on, Florence, we're all ready to go!—You girls go out to the car and Howdy and I'll be there in a sec!"

She could hardly breathe until the three girls were out of the house and the door closed behind them.

Then she turned to Howdy, her eyes going from him to the shut door of the sewing room.

"Leota's in there!" she told him in a frightened whisper. "She's going to leave town right away—if only you and I can get a couple of hundred dollars together for her!"

She clasped her hands and unclasped them nervously.

"Well—why ask me about it?" Howdy said after a long pause. "You know I haven't any money for her!—Last night you promised me that you'd give her money if that was what she was after. And now you don't want to make good on it, do you?"

He took his smart double-breasted overcoat from the hall rack and began to put it on.

"Oh, Howdy! You know I meant what I said!" Ann Marie's voice was a wailing cry now. "But all I have is a hundred dollars or so—and she wants two! She says she won't leave town unless she has two—" He adjusted his hat at just the right angle. "Oh, shucks!" answered Howdy, putting on his new tan gloves.

"Offer her your hundred," he said easily. "You'll see she'll jump at it! And if she says she's got to have more, tell her you'll send it to her."

"That's all I can do," Ann Marie decided, watching him go swaggering down the front walk to the Lawlers' car and get in.

They drove away. And not until they were out of sight did Ann Marie feel safe.

Then she went back to the sewing-room

Leota had taken a cigarette case from her bag and was placidly smoking.

"I thought you wasn't never comin' back," she said, blowing blue spirals at the ceiling. "What kep' you so long?"

"I asked Howdy if he had any money," Ann Marie told her frankly. "But he didn't—he never has any money, Leota, just as I tried to tell you this morning. Didn't I?"

Leota just blew smoke out of her nostrils and said nothing.

Mrs. Leezy was asleep on her bed snoring all up and down the scale, when Ann Marie opened the door of her room and shook her.

She sat bolt upright and stared wildly.

"Great heavens! What happened?" she cried out. "Don't ever wake me up like that again, girl! You've given me a shock I'll never get over in a month of Sundays. —What is it you want, for mercy's sake?"

Ann Marie picked it up and handed it to her.

"Please don't tell me you haven't that much," she cried. "If you haven't, I don't know what I WILL do!"

Muttering and still confused with sleep, Mrs. Leezy's work-worn hands went through the bag, tossing keys and handkerchief and old letters out upon the bed-spread.

At last she held out three $10 bills. "There 'tis," she said, sniffing. "You'll pay it back to me, won't you?—I put it aside for my insurance money—"

Her anxious voice followed Ann Marie down the stairs.

Ann Marie flung her the money and flew into the back parlor, where Mr. Macy was still dozing on the couch.

Slipping softly past him, Ann Marie sat down at his desk and wrote out a check for Leota . . . It was a check for $104.50, and it was for every penny that Ann Marie had in the whole world.

"Send me your address in New York, Leota," she said, when she handed over the slip of paper to Howdy's ex-sweetheart. "And I'll send you the rest just as soon as I can."

Leota looked doubtful.

"I'll give you my friend's address now," she decided. "You can send it to him, and he can give it to me. He'll know where I am."

She took from her handbag a large square white envelope covered with fine, dashing writing. The envelope that Ann Marie had seen on her desk that morning.

Neal Forsythe! . . . She had known it all along, she told herself.

But it was too late now to do anything about it. . . . Leota was on her way to Neal Forsythe. On her way to Neal Forsythe—

"And I'd give anything on earth just to be in her shoes!" thought Ann Marie, suddenly sick with jealousy. "Anything — anything — anything—"

In that moment she made up her mind to go to him.

A Kiss for Corinna

By MAY CHRISTIE

CHAPTER 6

With his other arm about her, he turned the coin obediently, closing his eyes, and his smiling lips moved.

What had he wished? Had the wish been directed to him and to herself?

For Corrina knew what she wanted most fro mout this queer, pulsating jumble of events that we call life. Greater than ambition, wealth, success, she wanted—love . . .! And love meant Malvey!

Ah, would he speak those magic words that would bring boundless happiness to her?

He said: "My wish is terribly ambitious—but at the same time quite a romantic one."

She told herself, hoping he would no see the trembling of her hands "He's going to tell me—now. Just as I am, he too is yearning for the day when he and I will never, never be separated."

"What did you wish for Malvey?" The question slipped from her lips just like the sigh of the soft April breezes rustling in the new young leaves that decked the trees which dreamed and swayed about them.

"My wish," said Malvey, slowly and distinctly, "is that one day—not too far distant—I may be in a position to buy a seat on the Stock Exchange, and so clean up a fortune!"

Corinna's heart sank like a stone at Malvey's words. She had hoped so eagerly that his "new moon wish" would hold a promise of their future—maybe a hint of marriage.

But he had put ambition before love. To buy a seat on the Stock Exchange—to "clean up a fortune"—the April moon shining so romantically down upon them had not inspired him to a confession of a "grande passion," but merely to a wish for his own business success.

She wanted to say, nonchalantly, and yet giving him a lead: "It's fine to have a big ambition of that sort—but wouldn't you like something more easily attainable—more human? A different kind of a happiness, maybe?"

But love made her dumb. And pride. His confession had been such an anticlimax. Like a dash of cold water on her high and happy mood.

She got up brusquely. Her nerves were all on edge. She felt if she sat there on the bench in Washington sq., close to him and yet separated by the cold barriers of his confession, she might blurt out stupid, unrecallable things . . . might frighten him away.

He fell into step beside her. They crossed the south side of the square and strolled along the streets of Greenwich Village.

He pushed open a wooden door which had a copper shingle above it. Before them, on rough benches, sat a conglomeration of young men and women.

A bearded boy of not more than twenty was holding forth to a little coterie in a corner.

"The exposure of the soul is very highly thought of here," commented Malvey dryly, when he and Corinna had seated themselves. "Now this is the sort of a place that would have appealed to the girl I saw today—" he broke off as though much conscious of having made a 'faux pas.'

Denise Van Wyck—despite Corinna's moments of high happiness—had fluttered between them like a ghost all day. The latter forced herself to say now, with dry lips, and feeling at the same time despicable because she hadn't got the courage to blurt out that name directly –

"What did she look like, Malvey?"

He seemed nonplussed. "That's a big order. I've only seen her twice and I didn't notice details particularly. She's pretty, tall and slim and sort of peppy. With very simple clothes that somehow seem a part of her — you know what I mean. A fine complexion, but the most noticable thing about her is her hair -- such a beautiful blend."

That hair! The irony of his commendation! Hadn't Corinna spent an hour and a half today in peroxiding Miss Van Wyck's mouse-like strands and bringing them to the desired color?

She swallowed twice and cleared her throat before she said: "It sounds awfully like one of my customers! She lives somewhere out by Great Neck. Her name's Van Wyck."

Malve swung round on her astonished. "How could you possibly tell from such a general description as I gave you? There must be any number of girls who come into your place who that would fit."

Then, as Corinna's face flushed under his scrutiny, he exclaimed "Come on, Corinna! What's in your mind? Out with it! What leads you to think that this girl and your customer are one and the same person?"

Corinna stammered: "You just said she was tall and slim and very pretty, and a blonde."

But he insisted. Under his forthright gaze she couldn't prevaricate.

"Miss Van Wyck called up from the shop this morning. I heard her give your number. Hanover 0174. I—I thought I heard her mention your name."

Including Massachusetts and Greater Boston Federation of Churches

Who Build the Boston Churches?

At the headquarters of the United Building Trades, 142 Berkeley st., where all building operations are listed in Greater Boston, eleven church construction jobs are recorded at the present time. Two hundred members from 15 to 20 unions are engaged in doing this work. The picture shows a few workmen who are completing the Church of the Holy Name on Center st., West Roxbury. From left to right: Frank Minnock, bricklayer; E. McKenzie, steamfitter; Charles Saunderson, steamfitter; James Riley, plumber; Jim Healy, electrician; August Schauhell, steamfitter superintendent. Fr. J. P. McNamara is rector and hopes to move into the new church next November.

LABOR TOPICS TOMORROW IN BOSTON

Mr. Martin T. Joyce, secretary of the Massachusetts Branch of the American Federation of Labor, will speak tomorrow afternoon at 3.15 at the Baptist Church in Readville. He will take for his topic, "Organized Labor and Its Achievements."

The Rev. Ralph H. Rowes of the Congregational City Missionary Society will preach tomorrow morning in the Mt. Vernon Church Massachusetts ave.; subject, "The Great Toiler."

In the pulpit of the Dudley St. Baptist Church, Roxbury, will come tomorrow the Rev. Cleveland I. Wilson.

Representatives of 136 parochial schools attended the teachers' institute which was held in Boston College High School this past week. The sessions were held twice daily from Monday to Friday.

The Rev. Charles Wells Dunham will deliver the last sermon of the summer season tomorrow morning in his own church, the Pilgrim Congregational, near Uphams Corner, Dorchester.

The Rev. Daniel Evans, D. D., of the Harvard Divinity School will be the preacher for the last union service for the summer in Watertown. He will preach in the Methodist Church.

Union services continue at the Arlington St. Unitarian Church. The Rev. Kenneth C. Walker of the Community Church, Hollis, N. Y., will be the preacher.

A departure ceremony will take place on St. Gabriel's Monastery grounds, Brighton, one week from tomorrow for three young Passionist priests who are leaving for a dangerous field in China, where not long ago three other priests met with brutal murder by Chinese bandits.

King's Chapel has invited the Rev. Thomas H. Billings, Ph.D., of Salem, Mass., to preach tomorrow in that historic pulpit.

The Rev. Vaughan Dabney of the Second Church, Codman sq., Dorchester, will preach in the Old South Church tomorrow. An attractive musical program has been arranged.

The Rev. Chellis V. Smith of the Hyde Park Baptist Church will preach to a union congregation in the Presbyterian Church tomorrow morning and evening, 10.30 and 7.30.

In Melrose the last of the union meetings will be held in the First Universalist church with the Rev. R. H. Bennett preaching.

Two continents are engaged in searching for a lost church bell. King Alfonso of Spain sent a present of a beautiful bell to the Santa Clara University in California supposedly by the steamship Donau of the North German Lloyd line. The ship arrived, but carried no bell. The King and the university will be glad to have the bell returned when found.

A union congregation of Old Cambridge will gather in the First Church, Congregational, tomorrow morning, and listen to a sermon by Rev. Frank Dyer of Los Angeles.

Brookline will conclude its union meetings tomorrow when Rev. A. C. Knudson will preach at the St. Mark's Methodist Church. Drs. Leavitt, Lindsay and Leslie are all expected back either next Sunday or the following.

The Rev. Charles H. Davis of the Methodist Church, Everett, will preach the last sermon of the summer union services in the Everett Congregational church tomorrow morning.

The Rev. George H. Driver of the Village Congregational Church in Dorchester will bring to a close the summer union meetings in South Dorchester in his own church tomorrow morning.

The Rev. Joseph Perry of Brookline will preach in the First Baptist Church, Cambridge, tomorrow. The Rev. W. D. Goble will return from his vacation the following Sunday.

The Thursday novena in honor of St. Theresa will take place on September 5 at St. Stephen's Church, the shrine of the "Little Flower" in Boston. The hours of the services are at 12.20 noon and in the evening at 7.45 o'clock.

Speakers on the Charles Street hall of Boston Common tomorrow will be Dr. Edward M. Noyes, First Church (Congregational), Newton Center; Rev. E. E. Aiken, Jr., Second Church (Congregational), Dorchester and Dr. H. M. LeSourd, professor of religious education, Boston University School of Religious Education.

A resolution praising President Hoover for his efforts to bring about a repeal of the National Origins act was passed by the state Ancient Order of Hibernians whose convention was held in Lowell this past week. Another resolution condemned moving pictures that made fun of the Irish race.

The Rev. Hugh Penney of the Union Church, Lowell, will preach tomorrow morning for the union service to be held in the Baptist Church, Watertown, at 10.45.

"Jesus Christ" will be the subject of the lesson-sermon in Christian Science churches tomorrow. The Golden text is: "As ye have, therefore, received Christ Jesus the Lord, so walk ye in Him . . . for in him dwelleth all the fullness of the God head bodily."

The Rev. William F. Gardner will be the preacher at Trinity Church tomorrow.

Federal Council's Labor Message

The Federal Council of Churches of America has sent out to all Protestant churches in the United States a Labor Day message to be read from pulpits tomorrow morning. Among other recommendations the message says: "First of all every local church and organization of churches needs to examine its own practices as employer. The churches must not compromise their own teaching out of a desire for economy."

"Each local church should address itself to industrial conditions in its own community with renewed energy. . . . Who are the employers and labor officials who are manifestly seeking to follow Christ in daily practice? . . . Church people should study the history of the labor movement so as to appreciate its significance in its struggle for better standards of life."

Russia Abolishes Sunday, Day of Rest

In the Russian scheme no particular day will be set aside for cessation of work and for religious observance. The edict which has just been made in the land of the Bolshevik abolishing the Sabbath, it is claimed, will help unemployment and increase production, with no let-down from which the community has to recover. The editor of the Christian Register maintains that the Russian first day will not be greatly different from the European Sunday, but he deplores both.

Passion Play Now in Rehearsals for 1930

Preparations already are under way for the presentation of the Passion Play at Oberammergau next year. Anton Lang, who has impersonated the part of the Christus three times is now too old, and a successor is to be chosen between two who are available, Alois Lang and Melchoir Breitsamter. Interest is great, also, in the selection of a young woman to play Mary.

M.E. Minister, British Foreign Minister

Mr. Arthur Henderson, British foreign minister is also a Methodist minister, and one who is without any militant and aggressive foreign policy. Those who know him believe he will work out his part of the Palestine situation on the basis of the Sermon on the Mount. Will such a policy work on the very ground where it was promulgated?

Hebrew Y's Assemble at Worcester

Jewish young people from all parts of New England will assemble tomorrow at Worcester for the nineteenth annual convention of the Y. M. H. A. and the Y. W. H. A.

ELEVEN NEW CHURCHES IN HUB

A survey of the religious field in Greater Boston discovers 11 building operations in progress upon churches of various denominations. At work upon these structures are members of from 20 to 25 unions. As in the middle ages the cathedrals were built by artisan guilds, so today labor unions are mixing the mortar, lifting and placing the brick, joining the beams, laying the floors, etc. In the ancient days, however, there were no steamfitters, few plumbers, and, of course, no electricians.

Of the 11 new churches in Greater Boston seven are Roman Catholic, one Episcopal, two Methodists, one Christian Science.

Most of the buildings are either of brick or stone, and laborers have the satisfaction of knowing that in all probability their work will outlast the century by at least a generation, and many will still be worshipped in at the close of the 21st century.

In the old cathedrals there were many ways of remembering guilds and individual workmen who wrought the fine features of those walls of art. Who will know in 10 years who built any of these Boston churches?

New B. U. Dean Arrives From N. Y.

Dr. Henry H. Meyer, successor to Dean Walter S. Athearn of the school of religious education of Boston University, arrived in Boston yesterday and will assume his new duties Tuesday. The school has been reorganized and is now a senior college and graduate school. The two first years have been eliminated, which will mean several hundred less students in this department this season. The new dean holds degrees from the University of California, Baldwin College, Drew Theological Seminary and Yale University. He is a former student of Columbia and Jena in Germany.

Opportunities in Evening School

Registration has begun for evening classes to be conducted by the Young Men's Catholic Association in the Boston College high school. This is the 19th season and will open September 30. Among subjects to be taught are: elocution, bookkeeping, accounting, real estate, shorthand, English, commercial law and college preparatory courses. Fr. O'Conor will continue his course in social service, addressed by authorities in many branches. Those who wish to enroll should call at headquarters, 41 East Newton st.

No Sunday Gas at Malden Station

A profitable gas station in Malden owned by E. A. Perry of the Perry Picture Co. will be leased to any reputable customer, provided he signs an agreement not to sell on Sunday. Mr. Perry is a member of the Baptist Church and a believer in one day of rest for all workers. The Lord's Day League will commend the Malden citizen and will hope that this isolated incident may lead to a new fashion. Why not fill the tank Saturday evening?

Pope Pius XI a Great Mountain Climber

A celebration took place recently in the town of Macugnaga in commemoration of the ascent of Monte Rosa by the present Pope, who made this difficult ascent, which is ranked close to Mont Blanc as a hazardous climb.

NEWS AND VIEWS OF MODERN HOMES

FINE POINTS OF MODERN HOMES

By BETTY BONNELL

I HAVE found that home has a strong appeal to most people, an appeal that assumes the proportions of consuming love.

The modernizing of homes appears to be the all important trend.

Betty Bonnell

Asphalt shingles in beautiful color blends that are fire resisting will modernize your roof. And insulation, not a feature in old houses, may be obtained today by the proper use of wall board, insulating lumber and building board.

Tile designs for kitchen or bath or a smooth surface that may be painted or papered add beauty to insulating qualities. The result is a house that is warm in winter, cool in summer, and beautiful the year round. The wasted space in your attic can be converted into spacious rooms by remodeling with wallboard. A positive luxury in old houses, beautiful and durable flooring is a universal feature of newly constructed dwellings.

Old houses can be remodeled by laying oak over the old floors at less than the cost of a good rug or carpet. To modernize is to economize. This economy is extended to time and space by built-in furniture.

Telephone cabinets, medicine cabinets, china closets, ironing boards, breakfast nooks and colonades bring convenience and beauty to the modern home.

As for the meaning of modern, it is synonymous with safety, beauty, durability, convenience and comfort. In reading my advice on home modernizing you may find a modern idea, which you may be sure I shall be glad to help you develop.

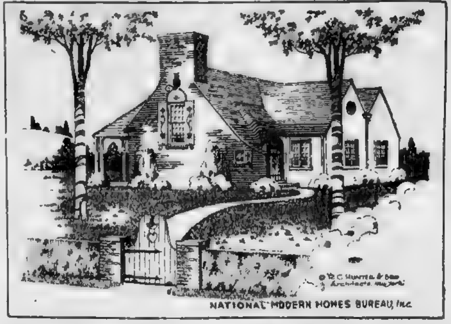
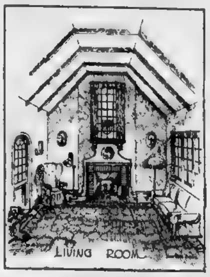
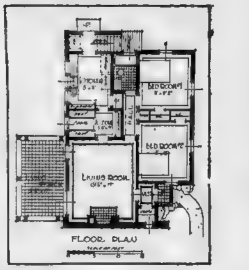
An Unusual Bungalow Costing $8100



NATIONAL MODERN HOMES BUREAU, Inc.





IDEAL BUNGALOW FOR THE NEWLYWEDS

By National Modern Homes Bureau, Inc.

WHAT bride would not be delighted with this quaint little bungalow, A-117.

The one-floor house eliminates lots of extra steps for the busy housewife who will find it no more trouble than a compact city apartment. At the same time one has the advantage of ones own house and a very charming and unusual one at that.

One enters the house through a small vestibule. The front door has a curved head and is built up of solid sticks. The curved ceiling and unusual fireplace making attractive features.

There is a very attractive dining alcove, a well equipped kitchen, rear porch and entry with space for the ice box and two generous bedrooms with tiled bath. Plenty of closets are provided, thus making a place for everything and helping to lighten the housewife's work.

There are many attractive details about this house, each worthy of note.

The iron cat that sits so placidly over the window in the brick gable, the unusual iron lantern, the thatch-roof effect of the shingles over the front door, the flower pot cut-outs on the shutters. All are the notes of individuality that result in a harmonious and attractive whole.

Cost about $8100.

COMPLETE working plans and specifications of the house illustrated above may be obtained for a nominal cost from the National Modern Homes Bureau, Inc. Any technical questions regarding this house will be answered without cost or obligation. Address the National Modern Homes Bureau, Inc., Real Estate dept., Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston. Refer to House A-117.

Realty Stock Mart Praised for Safety

New York, Aug. 31—The New York Real Estate Securities Exchange scheduled to open Oct. 1, as the first exchange dealing solely in real estate securities, is regarded by leading economists as an additional unit in the country's economic system, according to an announcement today.

Among numerous members of the American Economic Association, the chief national organization of economists, who have expressed this opinion to Cyrus C. Miller, president of the Exchange, are college and university professors, business men, writers and government officials.

A majority of the critics have praised the liquid market which the exchange will provide for real estate securities as its primary benefit to the investment world. Ready sale and resale constituting liquidity will be the foundation for its other services to investors and issuers of securities, they pointed out.

LAUD AMERICAN FOR AID TO CAUSES

Three letters of appreciation for services rendered by the Boston Evening American have been received by this newspaper. They were written by John P. Mahoney chairman of the press committee of the A. O. H. State convention; Mayor F. W. Hartford of Portsmouth, N. H., and Robert Silverman, regional director of Zionist Organization of America.

The letter written by Silverman follows:

"In behalf of the Zionist Organization of New England, I want to take this opportunity of expressing to you our appreciation for the wonderful co-operation given by your paper in connection with the present Palestine situation.

"The great crowd of Jews at Faneuil Hall last night was without doubt due in a large measure to the influence of your paper.

"I want to especially make mention of the untiring and persistent efforts of your correspondent, Miss Ruth Mugglebee. Your reports were very thorough, comprehensive and reliable."

The letter from Mayor Hartford of Portsmouth reads: "Portsmouth is under deep obligations for the wonderful co-operation of the Boston Evening American in the battle to release this city of the great hazard incident to the corn borer inspection on the Memorial bridge. For many weekends it was not possible to move traffic here and the jam was so great that it was a menace to the lives of our people.

"So strong did we present the situation to Governor William T. Gardiner of Maine and backed by the support of the press, headed by the Boston American, that the governor quickly fully realized our position and took action that brought instant relief to our city and the motorists of the country.

Permit me to extend the hearty thanks of the people, not only of New Hampshire, but on behalf of entire New England. It was full co-operation that brought about the victory."

The communication from Mahoney follows: "We wish to express our sincere appreciation to you for the splendid publicity given us in connection with our recent State Convention.

"The convention was a tremendous success and this, at least a part, was attributable to the generous publicity given us by you and our local papers."

CITY WORKERS ARE "LUCKY"

By WON LUCKY BILL

Today is the day of all days for city employes to pick up some easy money. Yes sir-ee! I have put out nearly 50 old $1 bills into the possession of city employes. Of this number I have selected 16 which will be winners in today's great money game.

Now it's up to the city employes to check their old $1 bills with my list of serial numbers in today's Boston Evening American and see if they have one of the winners for either $20, $10 or $5.

Miss Frances Ray, Mt. Vernon st., Lynn, brought in lucky buck A49826243E, a winner for $20. Miss Ray is a cashier in the office of a Lynn taxi-cab company. She checked over the old $1 bills in the cash register with my list and the result is she gets $19 for her trouble.

Harold Blair, Park ave., New York City, is spending a few days in Boston and vicinity. He soon learned of my E-Z money game and began playing it by watching his old $1 bills. He found lucky buck Z76915671D which he got in change in Quincy. It's a $5 winner.

Arthur Gorden, Shirley st., Winthrop, cashed in lucky buck Z43099866D for $5.

Watch for an additional list of 16 winners worth $150 in the Boston Evening American next Tuesday and every day thereafter.

TRAP BROTHERS IN NEW SHIP SWINDLE

New York, Aug. 31 (AP)—A new swindling game was uncovered by police today with the arrest of Henry Benjamin, 20, and his brother, Joseph, 18, both charged with grand larceny.

The two brothers have been operating for several months on ships about to sail, with Englishmen as their victims, police allege. One would board the liner as it was about to depart and strike up an acquaintance with an Englishman. During their conversation a worthless letter of credit of $12,000 on Lloyds Bank, London, would be displayed, with the request of an explanation of how to obtain money on it.

In a few minutes the other brother would appear, asking for "Mr. Benjamin," and inform him a package had been brought aboard for him on which some money was due. Finding himself short of cash, "Mr. Benjamin" would borrow the sum from his new-found friend and would leave to "get the package" and fail to return.

The brothers were arrested while accting an Englishman on the liner Olympic. Police have been seeking the pair since July 26, when Maj. Cuthbert Johnson of London was swindled out of $150. Maj. Johnson radioed the description of the youths to New York police and explained the manner in which they worked.

FIND WRECKAGE OF BOAT IN SEA

Remnants of a wreck at sea were brought to the Fish Pier today aboard the steam trawler William J. O'Brien. She carried a ship's bell and a small flagpole hauled up in her trawl.

Capt. Michael Powers reported raising the find last Tuesday night while the vessel was trawling on Georges Bank, 180 miles southeast of Boston lightship.

While old time fishermen believe the bell and mast to be the remains of a French fisherman, none could recall the loss of any vessel in recent years that would fit the inscription.

French vessels usually fish further north, they pointed out.

Funeral Rites for Margaret Merrick

Funeral services were held this morning in St. Peter's Church, Dorchester, for Miss Margaret F. Merrick, a widely known resident of the South End, who died as the result of a fall sustained on the ice last winter.

Her funeral was largely attended by members of the Houghton & Dutton Co., where she had held an important position in the bookkeeping department for 47 years. During late years her outside interests have been centered in missionary work, both here and abroad.

Her father, the late James Merrick, won distinction as a captain in the Civil War. She is survived by four sisters and two brothers, all residents of Dorchester.

Protest Gas Plant Near Schoolhouse

Brockton, Aug. 31—Bitter protests against a proposed $50,000 super-service station to be built by the Firestone Tire Co. on a corner opposite the Brockton high school buildings, have been filed with city and State officials by Chairman C. Harold Porter of the Brockton school board and by board of health officials.

Storing and selling gasoline so close to the big school, officials claim, would constitute a menace to the health and safety of the 3000 students.

Wreck of Boston Train Prevented

Prompt discovery of an attempt by boys to wreck a Boston-bound train at the railroad station in Scituate prevented possible death. Two railroad ties, 15 railroad spikes and two iron "fishplates" were found piled on the rails.

Joseph LeVoine, 12, and Edward J. Duran, 14, confessed that they had piled the ties and irons.

5,000 Children

KILLED by Automobiles in the United States
IN ONE YEAR

The schools are about to be reopened, thousands of little people 5 and 6 years old are about to march from home into the great world for the first time and here we are with the menace of the drunken and the reckless driver before us as they have never been before.

[illegible] hundred and thirty-three persons convicted of operating their cars while under the influence of liquor, this in Massachusetts in a single week, LAST week.

One hundred licenses and registrations suspended or revoked for driving after drinking intoxicating liquor, in the SAME WEEK.

In the opinion of many who are out on the road every day the RECKLESS driver is more of a threat than the drunk.

The reckless driver, the fellow who takes a chance, who moves out of his place in line and tries to jump everyone ahead, gets away until, finally, Constable Death intervenes.

We don't know HOW to reach the reckless driver, what sort of appeal to make to him. If he has a heart, he never gives any sign of it on the road; he HAS a head, but apparently there is little in it except self and the monetary advantage.

The number of children under 15 years of age killed by motor vehicles in the United States in the past year was only a few under FIVE THOUSAND.

Drive carefully!

Flying With Green Pilots

A Short Cut to Death.

(Copyright, 1929)

Young men learning to fly, not full-fledged pilots and still nervous, have a habit of inviting young friends to fly with them

Invitations are accepted, because youth is reckless and does not like to be thought timid.

Inexperienced pilots are often made nervous by the presence of passengers.

Danger and death come from that.

For instance, Monday, August 5, Frank Santos, a young pilot of San Francisco, twenty-two years old, who had just received his license, invited two young friends, Tony Castalonis and Paticio Prias, to fly with him. He took them up in a rented one-motored monoplane.

Eight hundred feet up he decided to show his friends a difficult stunt, went into a tailspin and crashed.

His spine was broken and he will die. The two friends that he took with him were fatally injured.

Flying by himself, the young pilot would have been more cautious. He should have flown at least fifty hours more before being allowed to take passengers.

Often passengers increase the danger by becoming frightened, seizing the control and "freesing to it," as the expression is, making it impossible for the pilot to save himself and passengers.

Flying is here to stay. You will have plenty of opportunity to fly, in machines well made, with pilots thoroughly experienced.

Don't risk your lives with any young friend "just learning." And don't encourage any young pilot to risk his life.

Hard-Bought Peace

We NEARLY Had One

(Copyright, 1929)

Mr. Newton D. Baker, who was Secretary of War under Woodrow Wilson, said recently we would like a "hard-bought peace." He would force this nation to be peaceable in spite of itself, and put "the quietus on the would-be American war-like nation."

Peace IS beautful, but you can pay too much for it.

When the big war came this nation was very UNWARLIKE. It was taken by surprise and kept on talking peace, until suddenly it found itself in the war, COMPLETELY UNPREPARED.

As a result this nation spent a billion on flying machines that wouldn't fly, another billion on ships that the nation hasn't been able to give away, or sell for junk, although it has tried for the last ten years to do so.

What else would have happened to the peaceful Americans had the war not ended, nobody knows.

But even for the sake of hard-bought peace, the United States would not like to be found in the same situation when the next war breaks.

Able French Women

They Understand Business and Politics

(Copyright, 1929)

The French Senate, old fashioned and conservative, did not want women to vote.

The French Chamber of Deputies said French women must vote, and refused to pass a bill that the Senate wanted. So the Senate approved "votes for women."

Of all women on earth, French women are undoubtedly and eminently fitted for the ballot.

They work with their husbands, many of them run the finances of their husband's business. Nearly all of them think about and understand public questions.

The BAER Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

WE had always thought a stock broker has a life as easy as candy in the bag.

We have observed the New York boys touring down to Wall Street around 10 in the morning. They were riding in their two-car limousines. Smoking cigars that looked like Harry Lauder's cane.

The boys on this Far Western stock exchange have to work like beavers trying to build a dam out of burned matches.

When it is 9 o'clock in New York it is 6 a. m. in California. And when it is margin time in Manhattan they ain't picking berries in Seattle

So the boys get up at 5 a. m. in order to keep step with the panics.

We were on the Los Angeles exchange when Wall Street dropped that three billion and then tried to catch it on the bounce

Most of the brokers were in pajamas. One guy hollered, "I'm sunk." Then he tried to pour himself a drink of coffee out of an alarm clock.

Another operator lost a million in Transatlantic Bridge and popped a waiter on the chin because his grapefruit was spotty.

A sleepy-eyed millionaire ain't no lily. He doesn't mind his fortune being swept away by a broomless vacuum cleaner. But he does object to losing his carpet slippers in the middle of an international slump in steel.

But 24 hours is a long time to stay up in the air with your engine missing.

We want to inform prospective investors that our one share of Cement Water Wings is still as steady as a tombstone.

A share of that a day will keep the bond brokers away. When a stock salesman hears that we have Cement Water Wings he blows a police whistle and leaps for a safety zone.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

NUNGESSER and Coli were lost in '27—

On July 14 Idzikowski crashed to his death.

Three brave men, they gave their lives in an effort to fly across the Atlantic.

They are "dead," we say. And yet, in a sense, Nungesser, Coli and Idzikowski have never been more alive.

That which was best in them, that which meant most to them, that which was MOST ALIVE in them, lives on though their bodies are gone

THEIR COURAGE LIVES

It lives, not as a glorious name, a beautiful memory, but as an ACTIVE FORCE.

What is a man's life? It is not his bodily machine—it is not the sum total of his blood, flesh and bones.

A MAN'S LIFE IS THE DREAM THAT INHABITS HIM—THE IMPULSE THAT MOVES HIM AND DREAMS AND IMPULSES DO NOT DIE. THEY LIVE ON—FOR GOOD OR EVIL, SPREADING OUT ENDLESSLY THROUGH HUMAN LIFE. OUR GHOSTS DO REALLY WALK!

A dream inhabited Nungesser, Coli and Idzikowski—a dream of freedom through flight. An impulse moved them—the impulse of courage. They may have had other dreams, other impulses, but these they had supremely.

They WERE that dream—they WERE that impulse.

When their aeroplanes fell, the bodies we called Nungesser, Coli and Idzikowski were broken. But their dream was not broken, their courage was not shattered

BY THEIR VERY "DEATH," THEIR DREAM ASSUMED GREATER REALITY. THEIR COURAGE GAINED GREATER SCOPE. FOR THEIR DREAM MADE BRIGHTER THE DREAMS OF OTHER MEN, AND THEIR COURAGE LIGHTED FIRES IN A THOUSAND OTHER HEARTS.

The bodies of these three men have gone back to the earth but their REALITY—the only part of them that really mattered even to themselves—lives on

THEY HAVE CROSSED THE ATLANTIC AT LAST! AND NO SKY IS BARRED TO THEM!

Have you ever thought of life in just that way—or of death in just that way?

Often you are disgusted with life—"tired of being decent." You wonder if it's all worth while.

I do not know whether there's anything better after this. I do not know whether we, as individuals, have eternal life. But this I DO know

The REALITY in us is IMMORTAL.

OUR DREAM LIVES ON.

Neither our goodness nor our evil is "interred with our bones"—IT FLIES FOREVER AND CASTS A BLIGHT OR RADIANCE OVER OTHER LIVES.

RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALICE MICHAELIS

OUR wants are many, yet in truth
We have one need alone
Down all the road from age to youth,
More love than we have known
Most wisely has it been decreed,
Love is the soil, love is the seed!

More love, that we may understand
A brother's grief or care,
More love to fill each day's demand
That all our good may share.
This trust was never yet betrayed;
Love is the sun, love is the shade!

So simple is the sceheme, the plan
So wholly clear and plain
That gladness waits for every man
Who dwells in love's domain.
Whatever path our feet may tread
Love is our wine, love is our bread!

WORDS OF WISE MEN

A hypocrite is in himself both the archer and the mark, in all actions shooting at his own praise or profit.—Fuller.

For every social wrong there must be a remedy. But the remedy can be nothing less than the abolition of the wrong.—George.

Hope and patience are two sovereign remedies for all, the surest reposals, the softest cushions to lean on in adversity—Burton.

No one will be more profoundly sad than he who laughs too much —Richter.

In truth there is no such thing in man's nature as a settled and full resolve either for good or evil, except at the very moment of execution. —Hawthorne.

Says Mrs. Solomon

By HELEN ROWLAND

SING Hallelujah, oh my Daughter! Sing hallelujah, and rejoice!

For, behold, the Summer passeth, and with it shall disappear all the strange and fearful sights, wherewith the eyes of beauty-lovers have been smitten and their spirits afflicted.

Go to. Upon what weird visions have we been forced to gaze, in this, the summer of man's discontent and woman's folly!

Verily, we have looked upon women, who sought desperately to emulate Mother Eve, in their desire to prove that they were vertebrate, and untrammeled by convention.

We have beheld men, who paraded through the market places and the highways, clad in pyjamas and in shorts, and in scanties, crying, "Down with the gods of fashion," and the tyranny of clothes! Down with Victorian modesty, which would rob us of our comfort, and make us slaves to the collar button."

And though our spirit may have shuddered, yet have we smiled. For, not even a soldier in kilties is funnier than a six-foot man in short panties!

Behold, a man in white knickers and a sport shirt is a thing of grace and beauty. He delighteth the eyes of damsels. But the masculine knee and the masculine Adam's apple were never intended to be seen of woman!

Verily, a beautiful feminine knee may be pleasant to the sight, but a pair of sun-tanned thighs and a row of vertebrae displayed upon the beach are as alluring as cold soup, and as disenchanting as garlic in the kiss.

Yea, a sun-kissed cheek may have its charms, but a peeling nose would make Venus herself unkissable; and a red forehead would transform Cleopatra from a temptation into a joke.

A damsel in riding breeches may be piquant, but a damsel in TROUSERS is as a cartoon without a point. She is neither fish, flesh, nor honest woman.

Therefore, let us give thanks that these things, too, shall pass away. And that, with the coming of the Autumn winds and the rising of the goose-flesh, sanity shall return; and men and women shall again appear clothed and in their right minds.

For poets may sing of "the female form, divine," but the female form, undraped, showeth more beefiness than divinity.

And man may have been made in the image of the Lord, but without a collar he doth not LOOK it.

Verily, verily, clothes may not make the man—but they make him easier upon the eyes of woman!

New York Day by Day

By O. O. M'INTYRE

NEW YORK, Aug. 31—Professional dog thieves have fallen on days of extremely thin picking. Twenty years ago dog stealing was a highly specialized racket in the metropolis. A clever canine crook could make from ten to fifteen thousand a year, big money then, and nothing at which to sneer now.

The best of them fraternized with the high-toned confidence men, such as the celebrated Gondorf brothers and Paper Collar Joe. They frequented such celebrated bars as those in the old Waldorf and Hoffman House, had their elegantly dressed women and sported spanking bays.

Dogs in those days were stolen to order. The market place for the thievery was in a block near the old Haymarket on 6th ave. Scouts and runners were the whiskey-voiced and red-nosed cabmen of the period. You told a cabman what kind of a dog you desired and next day it was delivered at a price.

The game was not so precarious as other forms of of thefting. A dog was a dog and the breed and love of the owner was not so pronounced as today. As a rule the owner of a stolen dog was so glad to get back his pet there were no prosecutions.

In the 1890's some five hundred dogs were stolen, swapped and sold during every 24 hours. Spotters marked homes in the aristocratic area where the pedigreed pup, the coach dog, the wire haired fox, Boston bull or various other breeds of the time were housed.

Dogs went unmuzzled save during that so-called superstitious stretch known as "dog days." Too, there were innumerable yards about mid-town where pets roamed loose. Walking off with a dog was comparatively easy. The thief jockeyed a dog into a passing cab and met the driver later to claim it

When the leash law came to the statute books, there was a slowing up in the thefts but the stolen dog market did not pass out of existence until about ten years ago. The explanation why dogs can't be stolen these days is simple. Valuable dogs ride around inside limousines, and are locked in when left alone.

An old time noticer inquires if people are noticing that miles in judging distance are no longer used as a figure of measurement. No one these days, for instance, says Washington is so many miles from New York. Instead, it is so many hours drive. All of which doesn't run up my temperature even on a blistering day.

A screech goes up among the dealers in women's summer dresses. Such articles have become outmoded to a big extent among sea shore loiters. The lady who used to buy them by the dozen now purchases a similar number of pajamas.

The Chinese chop suey craze along Broadway has spread to the "quick and dirties." Dairy lunches and sundry one-armed caravanseries display window cards calling attention to chicken chow mein and chop suey among luncheon offerings. Incidentally, a statitician reports there are exactly eight times as many Chinese restaurants from Herald square to West 72nd street as there were three years ago. Another link in the chain—or chink in the lane, if I cared to make you burst out laughing—is a series of Chinese breakfast parlors. Heretofore they have been serving only lunches and dinners. Breakfasts are mostly tea, crackers and candied preserves.

Every experienced stage performer has bad moments when he goes up in his lines and is helped over hurdles by frantic whispered asides from his fellows. One finished actor often goes for as long as four seasons without missing a cue or forgetting a sentence. When he does come a cropper he permits his understudy to take his role for a week. "It takes that long," he explains, "to get over my embarrassment."

"I am reliably informed," writes Mrs. T. G., "that you no longer write the articles in newspapers under your name but a cheaper writer is now doing it."

I have been wondering why they were so punk lately. But I love that "cheaper writer." Whoever he is, he probably receives at least two marbles and a skipping rope weekly.

"It won't be long now," telephones a smartie, "until you professional wonderers will be wondering whatever became of the girl who wore her skirt to her knees." Well, what has become of her, as long as you are so worked up?"

MAKING GOLD

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

"Can gold be manufactured of certain known substances which we know do not contain gold? Recently some German professor assumed that he could create gold by compounding; can you enlighten us on his theory?—G. Hothinger, Glenwood, Ill."

IF YOU want to understand how it is believed that gold may be formed by transmutation from other elements, for instance mercury, you might begin by abandoning entirely your ordinary ideas about the distinction between gold and mercury. Gold has certain "properties" by which you recognize it, and mercury has certain other properties equally distinctive. Gold is yellow, heavy, hard, but not too rigid, malleable, so that it can be shaped without too much difficulty, resistant to atmospheric influences, so that it keeps its brilliancy, etc. Mercury is white, liquid at ordinary temperatures, gathering itself into drops and running wildly about, and heavy, but a little lighter than gold

By these contrasted physical properties we distinguish between them. But nature knows them by entirely other marks. Nature builds the elements up out of atoms, each element having its own kind of atom. And she makes the atoms themselves up out of what seem to be nothing but electric charges—positive and negative, offsetting one another

She gives to every atom a nucleus, composed of a certain number of positive combined with a certain number of negative charges. But always there is at least one positive charge in excess, by virtue of which the nucleus can hold a negative charge, or an electron, prisoner as it were, in the atom.

Beginning with the simplest of the elements, hydrogen, it is found that the atom consists of a nu- which balances one negative charge which balances on negative charge or electron belonging to the same atom. So the hydrogen atom is made up of a positive nucleus (proton) and one negative electron. The latter is figured as revolving around the nucleus.

Other elementary atoms are made up of nuclei, surrounded by different numbers of electrons depending upon the outstanding nuclear positive charge. Thus each element is characterized by its so-called atomic number, i. e., the number electrons which its nucleus can retain around it.

The atomic number of gold is 79; that of mercury is 80. Now, suppose that it were possible in any way to change the number of elementary electric charges contained in the nucleus of the mercury atom so that, say one electron (negative charge) could be added, which would reduce the positive nuclear charge from 80 to 79. In that way the mercury atom might thus be transmuted into an atom of gold, since it would now be made up of 79 electrons, the characteristic atomic number of gold.

The same effect might be expected to result if, instead of causing a negative electron to enter the nucleus of the mercury atom, a positive proton were withdrawn from it, for, in either case, the result would be a nucleus with a charge suited to retain only the 79 electrons recognized in the atom of gold.

Several experimenters have believed that they succeeded in producing traces of gold from mercury in such ways as these, and a few other apparent transmutations of elements have been announced, but the whole subject is still more or less covered with obscurity and uncertainty.

A very curious idea was that of the Japanese, Nagaoka, who thought that in the mercury atom there exists a kind of satellite proton (positive charge) circulating around the main nucleus, and that if this could be expelled the mercury would be transmuted into gold. He thought that he had succeeded by a powerful disturbance of the mercury nucleus; but others objected that what really happened may just as well have been the forcing of an extra electron into the nucleus.

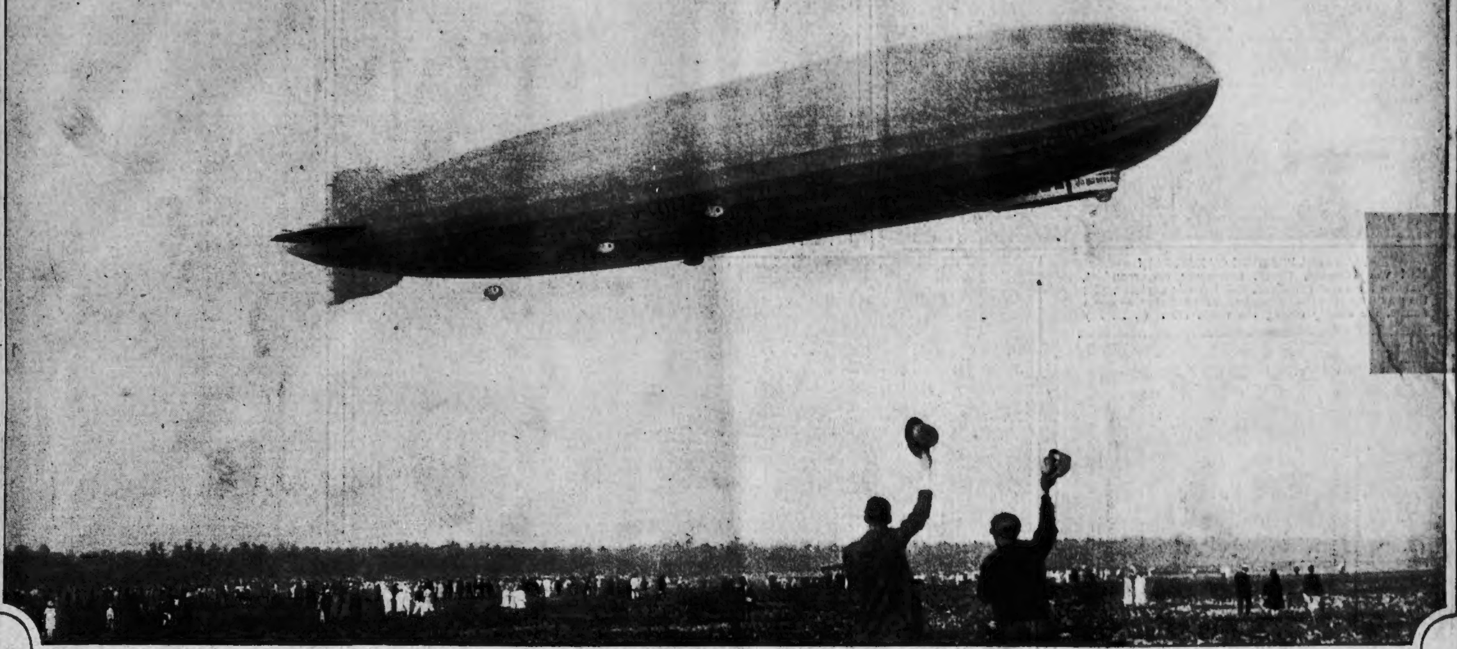
Epochal Hearst-Zeppelin
World Tour in Pictures

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN
A HOME PAPER FOR PEOPLE WHO THINK

Special Section, Saturday,
August 31, 1929



THE END—THE BEGINNING
As the end of the Hearst-Zeppelin world flight is marked, while the giant dirigible hovers over Lakehurst, so is recorded the beginning of a new era in air travel. Since Daedalus first fashioned wings to battle the upper ether, the goal of man has been to secure aerial supremacy. The Graf Zeppelin's historic 21-day flight achieved that goal. (I.N.R.)

OVER CAPITOL

CROWNING SUCCESSFUL FLIGHT
Scores of eager hands reached out of the crowd that greeted the Graf Zeppelin on its arrival at Lakehurst, N. J., hungry to grasp the hand that held the Zeppelin's destiny in its palm. Dr. Hugo Eckener is shown here, besieged by admirers, when his ship came to earth. Many of the throng followed the commander of the Zeppelin for hours seeking mementos of the flight. An avalanche of telegrams and cablegrams from all over world greeted Dr. Eckener. (I.N.R.)

CHECKING RECORD TIME
"Home again!" first exclamation of Lady Drummond Hay at Lakehurst. Her first act upon alighting from the Zeppelin, a check on the elapsed time of the flight, comparing her tiny watch with the records of the U. S. Lakehurst Naval air station chronometers. (I. N. R.)

HOOVER CONGRATULATES
Triumphantly ending the globe girdling tour of the Graf Zeppelin, Dr. Hugo Eckener flew to Washington, there to be congratulated by President Herbert Hoover on the success of the Hearst-Zeppelin enterprise. The President greeted the commander as an old friend. (I. N. R.)

PLOTTING POSITION OF ZEPPELIN

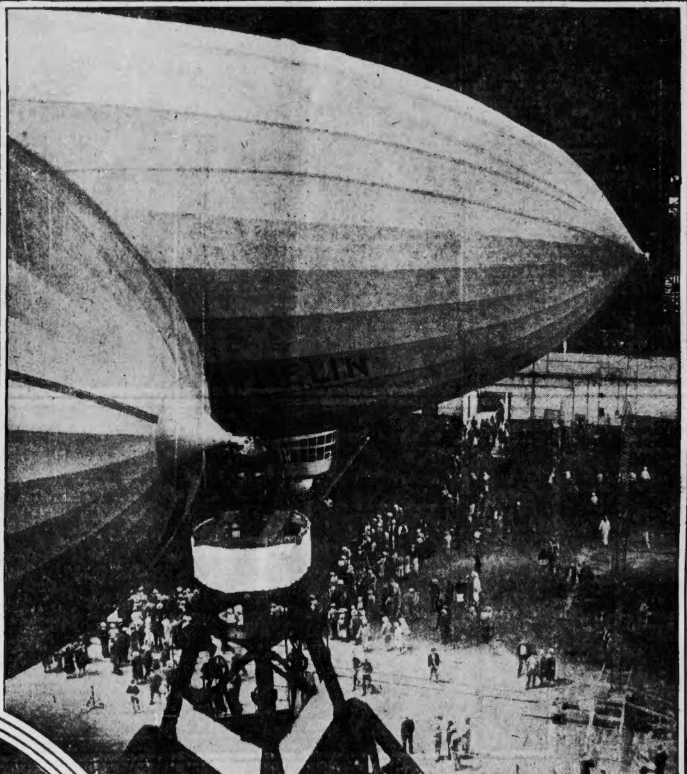
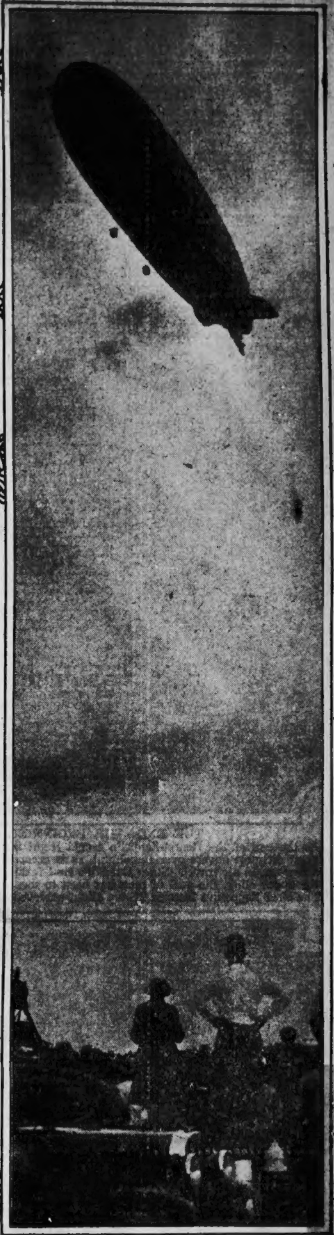
TESTING ONE OF THE MOTORS
Before the start from Lakehurst, each of the five motors of the Zeppelin was tuned almost countless times to insure dependency on the flight. (I. N. R.)

LEEDS AND HIS PRINCESS
William B. Leeds, member of one of America's wealthiest families, and his wife, Princess Xenia of Greece, just before the former boarded the Zeppelin. Young Leeds remained aboard for the complete world flight. (I. N. R.)



BESIDE THE LOS ANGELES
Nose and nose with the United States dirigible, the Zeppelin rests in the hangar at Lakehurst, where she was overhauled and refueled. The size of these airships may be judged by comparison with people below. (I. N. R.)



LAKEHURST BELOW

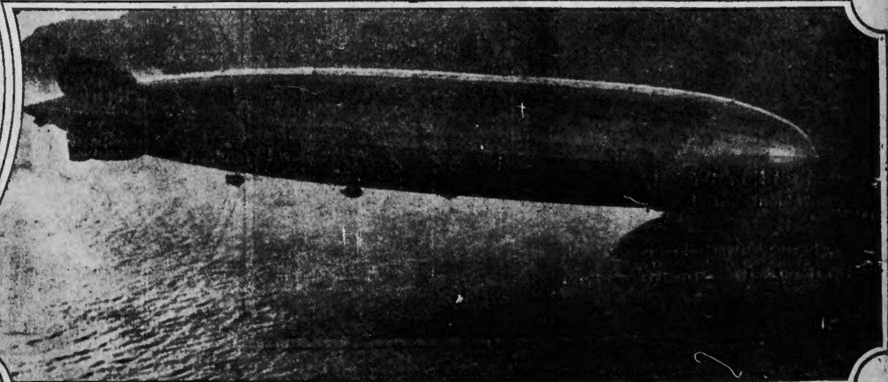
ONLY WOMAN PASSENGER ON WORLD TOUR
Beautiful Lady Hay, sole feminine passenger to circle the globe with the Graf Zeppelin. During the tour Lady Hay wrote special articles for the allied Hearst newspapers. She was the only woman to fly on the Zeppelin's premier to America. (I. N. R.)



ABOVE THE SILVER WATER AT THE GOLDEN GATE
Rays of the setting sun reflected on the waters of San Francisco bay and against the silvered sides of the Graf Zeppelin painted a beautiful picture as the dirigible floated over the city of the Golden Gate. The Graf Zeppelin is the first airship to cross the Pacific in one full flight. (I. N. R.)

SALUTING THE ZEPP
Lady Drummond Hay waves a greeting to the Graf Zeppelin as it circles Lakehurst, prior to its second landing in New Jersey, unofficial start of the world tour. (I. N. R.)

SMILE OF A CONQUEROR

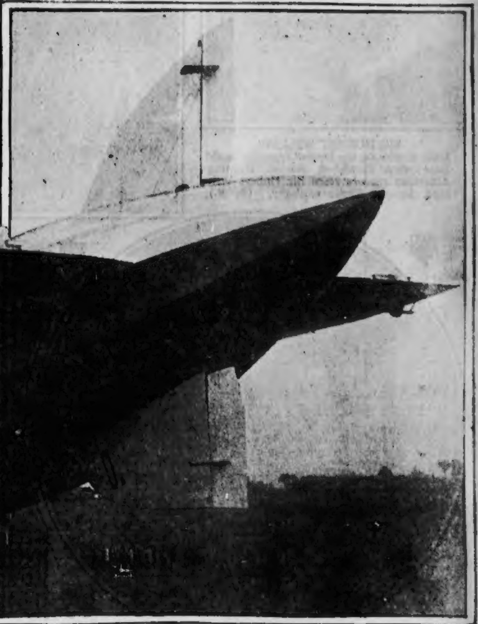
BOSTON PASSENGER
Joachim Rickard, Hub attorney, met with difficulty in securing passage for the Zeppelin world tour, but was taken aboard just as the big airship took off on its flight. (A. P.)



NOSE DOWN

CABIN BOY

FETING DR. ECKENER ON ARRIVAL IN TOKIO

LADY HAY GREETED IN GERMANY
At the landing field in Friedrichshafen, one of the first to greet Lady Hay was a Japanese woman, seeking passage to Tokio on the Graf Zeppelin. Refusal did not dampen her enthusiasm, however, for she presented Lady Hay with a bouquet of roses. (I.N.R.)

SIR HUBERT WILKINS

GAS BAGS FOR REFUELING OF GRAF ZEPPELIN
Gas bags about the size of ordinary balloons were used in refueling the Graf Zeppelin after it had been placed in the U. S. naval hangar at Lakehurst. In replacing hydrogen compound gas that had leaked out, new gas was pumped into these balloons outside the hangar. The balloons were then brought inside, attached to the Zeppelin, and the gas flowed into the dirigible. (A. P.)

KNUTE ECKENER
Son of Dr. Eckener, with the chow puppy presented to him on first flight of the Zeppelin to America. Young Eckener was helmsman on the world trip. (I. N. R.)

HEARST-ZEPPELIN CORRESPONDENTS

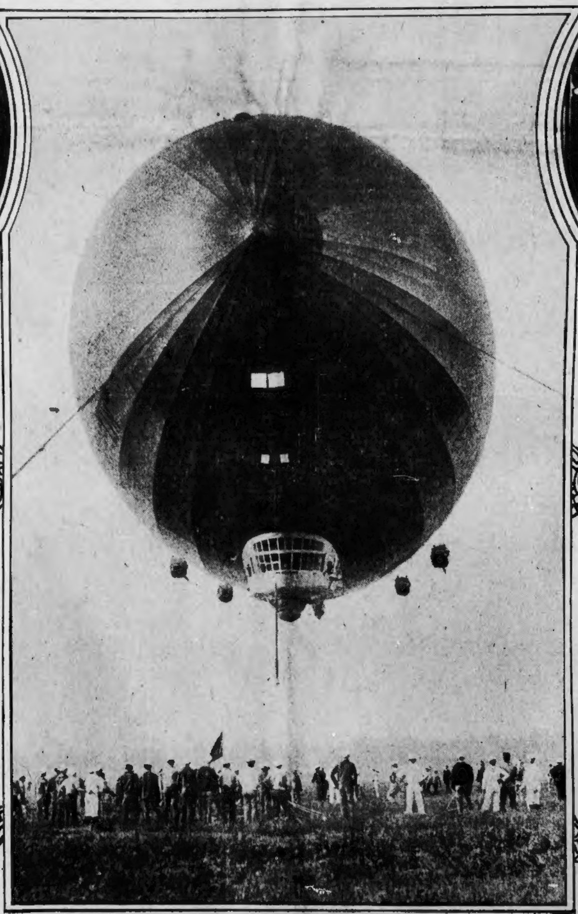
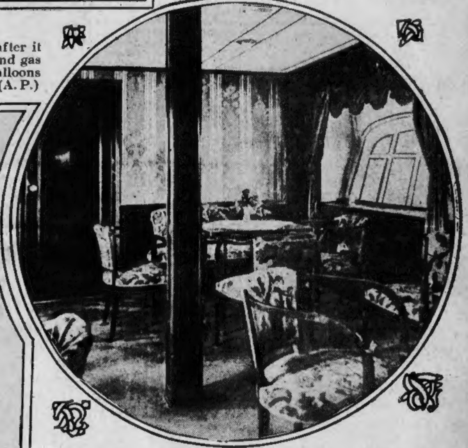
SILHOUETTED IN SKY
Against a midtown New York skyline, night shadows cast a somber hue upon the silvered airship as she circled the city. Just as Broadway was blazing into light, the giant Graf Zeppelin faded into the gathering gloom, headed for Lakehurst. (I. N. R.)



BRINGING ZEPPELIN BACK TO EARTH
Head on view of the dirigible as she was grounded Thursday morning at Lakehurst at the end of her world tour. Ground crews of the United States naval air station and members of the Zeppelin companies are ready to seize the trailing ropes and tackle by which the dirigible is steadied before she settles on the landing field. (I. N. R.)



LUXURIOUS GRAND SALON
Grand salon of the Zeppelin where passengers whiled away the hours while the giant soared through space in record-making time. Other quarters were fitted in similar fashion. (I. N. R.)

NAVAL MEN ON ZEPPELIN
Lieut. J. C. Richardson, Comdr. C. E. Rosendahl and C. P. Burgess, civil aeronautical engineer, who made the Hearst-Zeppelin tour for government observation purposes. Comdr. Rosendahl was formerly in charge of the dirigible, Los Angeles. (I. N. R.)
